The Year 5,690
Flying for Pasture
X-Raying the Mummy
A Prosperous Country

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1929, King Features Synd., Inc

TODAY, ROSH-HA-SHANAH, begins the Jewish new year at sundown. According to the ancient Hebrew calendar, the world was made 5690 years ago, figures that agree substantially with the Christian idea as to the age of the world.

They do not, however, agree with scientific facts. But that need not disturb religious beliefs.

Men have been on the earth, in various forms, for at least 1,000,000 years.

The earth itself is thousands of millions of years old.

More important, and most comforting, is the scientific statement that our earth will last, with the sun keeping it warm enough for human beings to enjoy themselves, for millions of centuries to come.

In that time, doubtless, war will die out, also selfishness, poverty and injustice. But such progress cannot be hurried.

The Canadian government bought a herd of 3000 selected reindeer and will drive them from Kotzebue Sound, in Arctic Alaska, to the east side of the Mackenzie Delta in Northwest Canada.

Driving great herds to new pasture lands is old.

Ahead of Canada's reindeer an Alaska Airways plane will fly, carrying officials of the Canadian government, spying out the best pastures to which the reindeer may be driven. That is new.

Modern science is useful. Airplanes select pastures, prospect for gold, watch forest fires, carry medicine.

Professor Langmuir, in the General Electric research laboratory, shows a life-size X-ray of a mummy, taken through all its wrappings. The outer edges of the vertebrae show indications of arthritis in those ancient days.

The Field Museum in Chicago will purchase no mummy until its genuineness has been demonstrated by X-rays, showing the bony structure of the old Egyptian inside.

X-ray and other scientific processes are used in selecting merchandise of many kinds.

Uncle Sam continues to prosper, in spite of increasing expenses. In three months, ending September 30, he collected more than one billion dollars, and $128,959,534 more than he collected in the same three months a year ago. It's a big, rich country, with one single city spending in a year as much as the United States used to spend before the war.

Business and buying, generally, throughout the country, continue active. The September report of Sears, Roebuck, which deals with the whole country, shows a gain of 23 per cent. The year's sales will reach close to half a billion.

The automobile industry also is cheerful. Four million eight hundred and twenty-three thousand seven hundred and twenty cars have been made in nine months this year, an increase of 31 per cent over the same period a year ago.

Stock gamblers may be worried, but the people at large feel cheerful.

Thinking about evil, dreading it, is worse than evil. One man killed himself because he feared a duel arranged for next day. Another blew his brains out rather than walk to safety on a tree trunk stretched over a deep chasm.

Herman Linderman, New York gangster, strangled himself with his belt in prison yesterday. Sentenced to fourteen years in prison, he had "squealed" on his associates, had been stabbed once in prison, and feared what would happen when he reached the penitentiary.

He put $8.50 in the pocket of a criminal asleep in his cell, with a note asking that it be divided with a friend. He wrote to that friend: "Have a good feast on me, on my way to hell."

Crime does not pay.

Germany mourns the loss of Stresemann, great and patriotic leader, who died yesterday, having actually worked himself to death for Germany. Before he died he had the satisfaction of negotiating the evacuation of the Rhineland, thus restoring to Germany her territorial integrity.

There came a pause in the American usury orgy yesterday. Call money dropped officially to 6 per cent, and was offered as low as 5 per cent.

Nevertheless, some lambs, changing from fever to chills, as malaria patients, thought it time to sell. Prices dropped. Nearly five million shares were sold.

Those that sold trash, of which many samples dance along the ticker tape, will be glad. Those that sold real American values will be sorry.

New York Gives MacDonald Great Welcome

MOVE TO DISBAR EX-GOV. BATES

DEATH TOLL 13 AS PRISON REVOLT ENDS

Convicts Surrender as Troops Prepare to Shell Stronghold With Artillery

Canon City, Col., Oct. 4—The all-night riot at the Colorado state penitentiary—one of the worst in the nation's history—came to an end today just after a crisp gray dawn broke over the mutiny-racked institution.

The besieged convicts, more than 150 of them, walked from cell house No. 3 in orderly fashion, their hands held high over their heads.

The total death list was placed at 13. A number of prisoners were severely wounded. Property damage was placed at $500,000.

The exodus of the convicts followed immediately on receipt of news that four ringleaders of the rebellion had shot themselves when it became apparent that the revolt had failed.

As the exodus began the guards swarmed into the inclosure about the cell house and surrounded the convicts. The latter submitted without opposition.

One of the guards who came out with the convicts said Danny Daniels, Maj. Davis, Charlie Davis and "Red" Riley, four of the riot leaders, had committed suicide.

The riot began yesterday noon and had raged throughout the night until the break of dawn. Just as the besieged convicts surrendered a battery of Colorado field artillery was wheeling its .75 guns into positions to shell their last stronghold in the prison yard. Part of the building had already been dynamited.

LIKE WORLD WAR SCENE.

The dead includes seven prison guards. Four of these—held as hostages—were shot down in cold blood when the demand of the riot leaders for freedom was refused. Their bodies were hurled from the windows of a bullet-scarred cellhouse.

Scenes reminiscent of the World War western front were enacted throughout the night. National guardsmen manning machine guns kept up a constant attack on the cellhouses held by the rioters. Hundreds of other armed volunteers, penitentiary guards, police and sheriffs' officers from a dozen Colorado cities poured rifle fire into the doors and windows of the convict quarters in response to repeated ultimatums of the convicts that they be given opportunity to escape.

Among the wounded in the all-night siege was Warden Francis J. Crawford. He was shot through the head and body. John Allen, chief clerk of the prison, also was wounded, as was Ike Merritte, private secretary to Mayor Stapleton of Denver, and a Denver police officer.

Three of the prison guards were killed in the prison yard as the riot began. The others were slaughtered, one by one, while held

Priest Tells How He Dared Death in Riot

Canon City, Col., Oct. 4—Father Patriick O'Neil today told his own story of his exploit in plantiing dynamite bombs under cell house No. 3 in the state prison riot here.

"There was nothing to it, really," he said, "although Daniels, the riot ringleader, did take a couple of shots at me.

"I placed the first dynamite charge against the wall, but there seemed to be some difficulty with the contact and it failed to explode.

"When I went up first to the cell house I met a messenger coming from the convicts. We both kept close to the ground and I advised him to make a dash for the gate, which he did without injury.

"He told me Daniels was in the lower window of the cell house and just as I continued my trip to the corner of the building a shot whistled by my head. It was a greeting from the 'trch slayer' all right. But it missed.

"I didn't waste any time getting back after placing the first charge, and when it failed to explode I tried again, placing the second charge directly on top of the first. A second shot whizzed by me from Daniels' lower window as I hastened away.

"The dynamite explosion shook the building, but dug into the ground at the corner of the cell house instead of blowing it upwards."

SEND MANY DRY AGENTS SOUTH

Washington, Oct. 4 (AP)—The Treasury, with winter slowly approaching in the North, today began preparing for the usual seasonal transfer of a part of its prohibition enforcement machinery to southern climes.

This shifting will call for the transfer of many Coast Guard and customs patrolmen, as well as Coast Guard cutters, from northern stations to the Gulf and Atlantic seaboards. Assistant Secretary Lowman of the Treasury, in charge of dry law enforcement, hopes to complete the transfer by early December.

Mystery Fliers in Air Hundred Hours

Chicago, Oct. 4—The two mystery pilots of the "Chicago-We Will" today passed their 100th hour in the air in an attempt to break the world refueling endurance record. The flight began at 6:52 a. m., Monday. The identity of the two pilots is being kept secret.

The "Chicago-We Will" several weeks ago stayed aloft nearly 300 hours before forced down by magneto trouble.

REPORT COSTE LANDED SAFELY

Paris, Oct. 4 (AP)—Advices received here today from Moscow stated that Dieudonne Coste, missing French aviator, was reported to have landed at a place 60 miles from Chita, Siberia, about 400 miles east of Irkutsk.

If the French ace and his companion succeeded in flying almost to Chita from LeBourget without a landing, they will have set a world's record for distance in non-stop flights.

Irkutsk is roughly 5000 miles from the French aviation field, and Coste in his red Breguet seems to have gone even farther east.

The record for non-stop distance flights, held by the Italians, Arturo Ferrarin and Carlo DelPrete, is 4475 miles. They made this mark at the beginning of July, 1928, flying from Montecelio Field, near Rome, to a little beach 10 miles north of Natal, Brazil.

Marked Bill Traps 2 in $10,000 Safe Job

Because a girl wrote "Hold this," and her initials on a $1 bill, two men were under arrest today for the $10,000 safe robbery at the Vineyard Haven office of the New Bedford, Marthas Vineyard and Nantucket Steamboat Co., on Labor Day.

Edward Tracey, alleged safe breaker with a long record, was arrested in Woonsocket, R. I., charged with the Vineyard Haven theft, and Joseph M. Fisher, 26, of Providence, is under arrest as an accessory.

Arthur Carpenter, of Taunton, is held as a material witness.

The arrests followed four weeks of investigation by the state police of Rhode Island and Massachusetts.

PREMIER NEARS WASHINGTON TO MEET HOOVER

MacDonald and Daughter Speed to the Capital After Great New York Reception

On Board MacDonald Train, Oct. 4 (AP)—Prime Minister MacDonald had a fast and pleasant trip from New York to Philadelphia. After a stop to change engines the train continued to Washington, seeking to arrive on schedule time—4 p. m.

New York, Oct. 4 (AP)—Cheered by thousands who lined lower Broadway to catch a glimpse of him, J. Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister of Great Britain, passed through this eastern gateway of America today on an errand of peace to the nation's capital.

The special train taking him to Washington and the conferences with President Hoover on limitation of naval armaments, which are the purpose of his visit, pulled out at 11:33 o'clock this morning, scarcely more than an hour after he had landed at the Battery.

But during that brief period he had ample opportunity to judge the sentiment of the people whose President he had come to see.

The Battery was black with crowds and all along Broadway they filled the sidewalks. City Hall plaza was crammed with other thousands who cheered as the Prime Minister entered the City Hall to be presented the freedom of the city by Mayor James J. Walker.

From that ceremony Mr. MacDonald and his party were escorted direct to the Pennsylvania Station where the special train was waiting.

SALUTE OF 19 GUNS

The distinguished visitor felt the first warmth of his reception at the Quarantine Station, shortly after he arrived there on the liner Berengaria, which was escorted by

Walter T. Doyle of Cedar st., Dorchester, was awarded a verdict of $15,500 by a Suffolk Superior court jury today in his alienation of affections suit against Ernest Collopy, New Bedford auto salesman.

The case had been on trial for several days, but the jury required only two hours to reach its verdict. Part of the testimony concerned a visit by Doyle and police officers to a hotel where they were alleged to have found Collopy and Mrs. Doyle in a room.

Doyle secured a divorce several months ago on the grounds of infidelity.

JUDGE NAMES R. T. DODGE AS PROSECUTOR

Petition of Boston Bar Association Is Impounded in Supreme Court

Disbarment of John L. Bates, former Governor of Massachusetts, was asked in a petition filed in Supreme Court today by the Bar Association of the city of Boston.

At the request of counsel for Bates and for the Bar Association, Judge John C. Crosby impounded the petition.

Following a conference at the bench between Raymond T. Parke, secretary of the Bar Association, and Arthur D. Hill, former corporation counsel who is representing Bates, Judge Crosby appointed Robert T. Dodge as attorney to prosecute the case.

The prayer of the petition was for the removal of Bates from office as an attorney-at-law in Massachusetts.

DEFEATED BY DOUGLAS

John Lewis Bates served two terms as governor, in 1902 and 1903. He was defeated in 1904 by William L. Douglas.

While he was a representative in the state legislature in 1895 Bates obtained passage of the order for construction of the East Boston tunnel.

The Way Out

A Message to the Ambitious

WOULD you like to get ahead in the world? Do you want a better position, more pay?

Why not DO something about it?

"Oh," the young man says, "I am not fitted for anything better, not prepared for it. You have to have an education. I quit in the sixth grade. I see my mistake, now, but it's too late."

It is NOT too late; and in order that the responsibility may be yours, and not ours, we call the attention of young and adult to the fact that the evening schools have reopened for registration and will begin their sessions next Monday.

This great city of ours very generously places at the disposal of citizens—young and older—an evening high school, eight evening commercial high schools, a mechanic arts evening high school, evening classes in the Boston Trade School—to help men who are already "in" a skilled trade—and sixteen evening elementary schools.

You will be encouraged by two paragraphs from a recent report of the Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Burke:

> "The evening elementary schools provide for three distinct types of work, namely, courses of instruction similar to those offered in the day elementary schools and leading directly to graduation as a condition for admission to evening high school; a course in Americanization and Citizenship providing opportunity for instruction in English and naturalization, mainly for foreign-born minors and adults; and a course in several branches of home practical arts, including cookery, dressmaking, home decoration, home nursing and millinery. In one evening elementary school classes are organized in lip-reading for persons wholly or partially deaf.
> "There has been a distinct change in the pupil body of our evening schools. The students are a purposive, serious-minded group, self-disciplined and desirous of reaching a pre-determined goal. Those preparing for entrance to college, those studying to become nurses, doctors, lawyers, teachers, etc., as well as others whose aim is to increase their efficiency in their present positions, are found among the student body. In brief, almost all are SEEKING DEFINITE EDUCATION FOR SERVICE IN A COMMUNITY THAT IS DEMANDING HIGHER QUALIFICATIONS FOR APPOINTMENT TO BETTER POSITIONS."

Sessions are held on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings, from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock.

Not only instruction but books and stationery are FREE TO RESIDENTS OF BOSTON. Non-residents may attend by paying a small fee.

And DON'T be afraid of being lonesome or conspicuous. The evening high schools will have more than 6000, the evening elementary schools more than 7000 pupils. There are more than 400 teachers.

WAITING for you!

Gentlemen's Agreement

To Keep the Price of Scallop "Where It Ought to Be"

The season being upon us, the fishermen of Cape Cod and Buzzards Bay are wondering if there may not be some way by which to regulate the scallop market. Last year, so many motorboats and dredges were out, and so many men at work, that in the first week of the season the price dropped from $4 to $2 per gallon.

At a dinner of the Selectmen's Association of Barnstable County, a night or two ago, Dennis, Yarmouth and Barnstable suggested a daily limit of 10 bushels per man. Chatham, reporting a "good set," held out for 20. They compromised on 10 bushels per man, 15 bushels per boat, and called upon Marion, Wareham and Mattapoisett to fall in line.

The housewife in the city, who at the beginning of the season will pay $1.50 per quart or more, may not be deeply interested, but on the Cape men who until January will be going out in icy waters at dawn are questioning the legality of such a restriction, at least in so far as it applies to the "boat." They think it may be all right to limit the daily take per man.

In the season, the scallop fisherman sometimes realizes as much as $150 for a week's labor. He earns every penny of it. In recent years not so much is heard about a trick of the trade known as "soaking." Scallop absorb great quantities of water and there was a time—the city price being $1.50 a quart—when your purchase might include 30 to 40 per cent of water.

While waiting for the scallop to come to market it may not be amiss to call attention to last week's huge catches of mackerel. On a single day more than 150,000 pounds were brought into Provincetown, caught off Little Bank. Buyers offered 1½, 2 and 2½ cents for them! This is a good time to buy fresh mackerel.

New England Worked Together to Bring Next Year's Legion Convention to Us

The vote at Louisville shows what teamwork can do.

This will be the first National Convention of the American Legion to be held in New England.

It would be difficult to name ALL to whom credit is due, but the names occur of Past Commander John W. Reth, former Governor Fuller, Mayor Nichols, Governor Allen and Dennis Haverty, secretary of the Legion in Massachusetts. The Chamber of Commerce helped.

But DON'T forget that Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island and Connecticut were with us.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—One of America's toughest lexicographers endorses the use of onplane and deplane.

A lexicographer is a compiler of a dictionary and is often seen waiting in wait for his prey in the thought-proof rooms of Carnegie library.

Enplane and deplane mean to get in and get out of an aeroplane. We use the word entrain when we take a train ride and we say embark when we take a boat.

You could also say debike when you fall off a bicycle.

Science and progress are responsible for many mechanical words which we are forced to learn every day.

Thirty years ago we didn't know what a garage meant.

Now, we don't know what parking space means.

There have been so many industries organized recently that we require a brand new set of technical words to describe the result.

Our better class of linguists heartily endorses the word outcray when getting tossed out of a speak-easy.

The proper word for entering the hootcherie can be pronounced many different ways. The man opens the door and you scramm in.

So when you are tossed out, we might say that you have been descrammed, even unto the third generation.

After you bounce three or four times, and have decided to leave the rest of the flying to Lindbergh, a cop approaches on foot and says, "Have you been deplaned?"

You remark, "Nope, judging from the timbery taste, I think I have been denatured."

It's little words like this that make the mighty ocean and the pleasant convalescence.

Some of our more inexperienced porch drinkers and historians think that Hippocrates was so named because he carried a crate of the stuff on his hip. We are also indebted to Marconi for many new words.

When radio started we learned about the cat's whiskers and resistance coils and things. Now, when a mezzanine-soprano is sobbing her bridgework away over the Purple network, we can say that she is envowling and otherwise desquawking.

English is a language of cracked lips, anyway, and we hope they make it tougher just to teach a lesson to masters of ceremonies.

We will now go for a little blimp and enzeppel ourselves.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I DO believe that the most insidious danger in modern life is THE PUSH BUTTON.

Push a button, turn a lever—there is light, heat, water, transportation . . . you may talk to the world . . . listen to the chatter of the world without moving from your seat . . . summon the markets of the world to your door.

This ease, this freedom from responsibility, we call PROGRESS. But is it? It makes life infinitely more comfortable for the consumer, infinitely fore profitable for the producer. BUT WHAT DOES IT DO TO THE INDIVIDUAL? It does PLENTY and most of what it does is BAD.

Take me for instance. I'm a horrible example of what push buttons can do to a healthy, husky human.

Back in 1916 Fate stranded me in a little mining camp in the Sierra Nevada, with a sick boy on my hands and not a nickel in my pockets. There was no way of getting out, for the boy couldn't breathe elsewhere. We had to eat. There was nothing to eat on. But I was young—strong—AND MAD! I vowed I'd show 'em—and I did!

I tackled life with my bare fists. I worked in a mine, hauling muck, picking ore, for there was no other work to be found. There wasn't a push button within fifty miles. I fought like blazes for everything I got. My life was as simple, as hard and as direct as a timber wolf's.

As a consequence, my body hardened into a fine machine, my senses quickened, my imagination grew. Life was no longer ready made. I made it—I made every particle of it and I stung with the thrill of creation and discovery. My days were crammed with color and flavor. The passage of the seasons, the turn of the winds, the play of the light upon the desert hills, moon rise, star dawn, the slow coming of the rain, all these became VITAL EXPERIENCES. There was drama in the breathless waiting for the smoke from the "shot" to clear. There was adventure in the stuffing of an Italian squash with eggs and olive oil, Parmesan cheese, spinach, basalico and crumbs. The few people whom I knew became as significant as characters in a Greek tragedy. Life was good!

Then the thing called Lady Luck happened to me and I came to the city to write. I came to the city and rented a stuffy apartment and the only thing that LIVED about me was my tapping hand. All of the quickening, fundamental things which I had once done for myself were now done for me, for my job took all my time. I became a set of weaving fingers, a scuttling brain. I stopped sweating. I achieved a complexion again. I also achieved more money in a week than I had in two months in the mountains. BUT I LOST EVERYTHING THAT WOULD HAVE GIVEN THAT MONEY VALUE.

The appetite went out of me, the flavor went out of life. I forgot natural occasions, I forgot natural moods. I became as artificial as a glass grape. AND MY DEHYDRATED SOUL RATTLED AROUND INSIDE MY BODY LIKE A PEA IN A WITHERED POD.

Well I've gotten wise to myself at last. I'm writing this under a huge, old bull pine, in the middle of a hundred miles of wilderness with a 115 degree sun doing its stuff overhead. I've been out irrigating beans and breaking a trail under that sun and I'm sweating like a steer.

For five months I haven't had a comfort that I haven't fought for as a wild cat fights for food—by sheer brute will and force. I'm tired and burnt and seamed and scarred BUT OHMIGOSH, I'M ALIVE AGAIN!

This is the life! You can have your push buttons if you want them, stranger—but not for me! THEY COME TOO HIGH!

See Life in the Stars

By ARCHIBALD HENDERSON

THERE is a sort of cosmic vanity in the naive assumption that life is confined to this earth. The extreme insignificance of the earth both in size and position, argues the absurdity of such a supposition.

At night Mars appears to be a very insignificant body as compared with the earth. If we could, disregarding the temperature, take a position on the sun, the earth would look no larger than Mars now looks to use. In volume the sun is more than one million times greater than the earth.

Yet what is the sun as compared to the giant Betelgeuse, inside of which twenty-five million suns like ours could be packed?

The sun has a diameter of less than one million miles. It emits an enormous amount of light and heat in the form of radiant energy. The amount received by the earth is, to be sure, immense.

The sun actually radiates seventy-thousand horse-power per square yard. A square yard of the earth, exposed perpendicularly to the sun's rays, receive one and one-half horse-power of radiant energy.

But this is only an insignificant fraction of the energy the sun radiates. In figures, it is only two-billionth. If the sun were created expressly to light and heat the earth, there has been a colossal waste of energy throughout the ages.

Our sun is only one of millions of other suns in the universe. If our sun were created solely for the sustentation of life on this earth, it is surely reasonable to suppose that there are innumerable other planets on which life exists, that life being sustained by those countless other suns.

How many suns there are in the universe may be left to a vivid imagination. But a single illustration may help to give stimulation to that imagination.

If you look at the great Hercules star cluster, you will see only a bright patch, like an illuminated dandelion fuzz. Actually, according to calculation from photographs taken by the 100-inch reflector of the Mount Wilson Observatory there are at least one hundred thousand suns in this single globular cluster.

It is perhaps thirty thousand light years distant; and the photograph indicates that, in the center of the cluster, the suns are crowded closely together. But this is very far from being the case. Even in the very center of the cluster the average distance between adjacent suns is something like one hundred thousand times the distance from the earth to the sun.

Thus we see that there is abundant room for planets to revolve about them in families much greater than that belonging to our own sun. There may be life on each of these planets, sustained by the particular sun around which it revolves.

The earth occupies no special or favored spot in the universe. It is not even in the center of our galaxy. Its situation is paralleled by other worlds of probably similar character an uncountable number of times.

The Wailing Wall

The Scene of the Recent Murderous Riots in Jerusalem

(Copyright, 1929)

HERE, DEVOUT JEWS MOURN THE DESTRUCTION OF SOLOMON'S TEMPLE.

The ancient wall of which a small part is shown in this photograph, is the remnant of Solomon's Temple, long since destroyed.

On the site of the Temple, 700 years ago, Mohammedans built a mosque for their religion, and for thirteen hundred years Mohammedan Arabs have ruled and owned Jerusalem, the "Holy City," of various religions.

The Holy Wall itself stands on Mohammedan property, and Jews standing at the Wall, or "sitting in solitude to mourn" approach the Wall only by permission of the Arabs, an arrangement made through the British Government.

Here, not long ago, the frightful outbreak of religious and racial hatred began in Jerusalem. Jews wailing at the Wall, unarmed and unprotected, were stricken down and killed by fanatical Arabs.

For centuries devout Jews living in Jerusalem, and many returning to Jerusalem in their old age from the most distant parts of the earth, have mourned at this Wailing Wall the departed glory of the Temple and the ruin of the Jewish nation.

There had been no interference by the Arabs, except unimportant occasional conflicts, until the highly successful colonization of the Zionists aroused Arab jealousies.

The work of Zionists had greatly increased Arab prosperity, multiplying their wages by three, giving them employment, eliminating disease and death by fighting malaria and other sickness.

But all of this, in the estimation of fanatical Arabs, could not outweigh the fact that a religion other than their own, and a race different from theirs, was becoming powerful and dominant in the city held by them for thirteen hundred years, and considered their own for all time.

For the time being peace has been restored, and Great Britain has promised to carry out the duty of maintaining order when she took the mandate for Palestine.

Once again devout Jews are permitted to approach this old Wall with the strange huge stone, and there bewail departed glory.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. M'INTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—Students of superstition find an absorbing topic in the beautiful Century Theater, which recently passed to wreckers, as the most ill-fated of all New York theatrical ventures. Vast fortunes have been employed to shake off its ancient hoodoo.

The Century was a triumph of artistic endeavor—the finest theater, when opened, in the world. Its first night audience was perhaps the most representative ever gathered under one roof. Celebrities came from all over the globe to see what was christened "The New Theater."

The initial production was Shakespeare's "Antony and Cleopatra" with Sothern and Marlowe in title roles. It was not, for some reason, discovered until a few moments after the curtain lifted that the acoustics were faulty. A voice could scarcely be heard back of the 12th row.

Hurried attempts were made to remedy this, and although there were slight improvements, architects shook their heads. The playhouse was doomed. It was not the first or likely the last theater unable to free itself from the shackles of a silly superstition.

Even the unimaginative began to notice the Century somehow had acquired an eerie and spooky appearance. So for years it wallowed in devastating gloom. The finest stage productions offered there flopped, yet many were moved southward and achieved astonishing runs.

Night club after night club lodged in its basement and upper floors, but were forced to quit. The intrepid Tex Guinan at the height of popularity could not stem the tide of misfortune. The location was ideal and the open spaces of the park at its doorstep enhanced its beauty. Yet—

The Century will now be graced by an imposing building to be occupied by the French government as a sort of industrial and artistic show place. Along with this announcement are signs of feverish building activities in the lower section. Central Park West is on the boom.

Boys who used to go out to "paint the town" now go out "to heat up a joint."

It sounds like a wheeze of some sort, but the most sensational dish in London this season was a fricassee of nightingale's tongues. It is to be featured in a cafe in the Fifties at $6.50 a portion.

West is the noisiest and roughest street in town, with its army of truckmen, teamsters and husky dock wallopers. Here will be found hairy chested seamen who have been around the Horn on windjammers, felt the crash of belaying pins and gone down to sea in ships. Giant Percheron horses still tug at ponderous loads with their hooves striking fire on cobblestone. There are tramp steamers loaded for Marseilles and Cathay and prim ocean liners riding high for midnight getaways. The atmosphere is adventuresome, the voice strident and the mysterious tingle of the seven seas is pronounced. Pungent smells from fishing smacks, oil tankers and pier piles of hemp assail the nostrils. It is another world.

The last word in dinner frocks adorned an actress, just back from Paris, in a cafe this week. It is almost to the ground on one side and barely reaches the knee on the other. On the long side is a tight-fitting sleeve and the short side is sleeveless. And if that isn't a clear description, I am not hired as a fashion writer, and quit shaving.

Most of us—despite sneerers—secretly nurse the Boy Scout idea that if we work hard, live clean and save our money we will some day live in a granite mansion where we can touch a topaz bell to summon the eunuch for a cigaret light. And then—as it happened today—we overheard a rich young wastrel whose life has been devoted to rakish idleness, order his secretary to bet $7000 on a 6 to 1 shot and win. And we wonder!

All the way from Cuba: "Our new $3 banquet cigar is five times the size of a panatella and made of strongest Havana filler. May we send you one?"

Go head—also a stretcher!

COLORADO PRISON RIOT CURBED AS LEADERS END THEIR OWN LIVES

ARTILLERY READY TO FIRE WHEN CONVICTS GIVE UP

RAID PRISON ARSENAL.

The first outbreak of the riot, apparently well planned in advance, and led by six desperate prison inmates, came while 700 prisoners were at their noon meal.

It began when Jimmy Pardue, serving a long term for robbery, shot and killed Guard James Irwin with a rifle that he had stolen from the prison arsenal. Immediately bedlam broke loose.

Ringleaders in the confusion at once led a raid on the prison arsenal and secured an unlimited supply of arms and ammunition. Within a few minutes fire had been set to the dining room, the prison chapel and cell houses No. 1 and No. 2.

Immediately there was general firing between the dozen guards and prisoners, but within a short time the convicts had gained complete control of the cell houses. The riot then settled down to a desperate all-day struggle, during which more than 7000 shots are believed to have been fired by both sides.

With the capitulation of the convicts at dawn guards who rushed into cell house No. 3 found the bodies of the suicide ringleaders, dead apparently about two hours.

It was noted the rebellion had calmed about two hours before the prisoners marched from their gun-swept stronghold.

In the doorway was the body of Daniels, chief leader in the outbreak. The bodies of his three helpers were found nearby.

Powder burns on their temples bore mute testimony to shots fired at close range.

FEARED FOR BROTHER

The floor of the cell house, which had served as the execution chamber of the four captured guards, is stained with blood.

The bodies of Charles Shepherd and John V. McClelland, two of the slain guards, were found in a corner. The victims had been bound hand and foot. Both had been shot through the head.

The news that the leaders had committed suicide was brought outside by C. E. Earl, one of the surviving hostage guards. The suicides occurred at 4 a. m. Earl said he had been afraid to leave the cell house until daylight, for fear of being mistaken for a convict and shot by watchers on the walls.

With him in the cell house were John Pease and Lawrence Roche, two other guards, who escaped the fury of the convicts.

Roche's sister, Josephine, secretary to Warden Crawford, had remained at the prison all night, fearing each minute to see her brother's bullet-riddled body tossed out of a window of the cell house.

Giving her brother up for dead, she had left the prison shortly before daylight. When she learned that he was alive, she collapsed.

SLAY FELLOW CONVICT

Before ending his own life Daniels is said to have shot and killed Pardue, the convict who fired the opening gun in the riot. Pardue had been wounded in the early fighting. Daniels slew him, it is said to "end his pain."

Marvin Duncan, one of the guards rescued in the cell house, was found stark mad from terror.

He was found locked in a cell and it was necessary to take off the door to get him out. He was at first thought to be dead, but examination revealed he was not even wounded.

He saw J. J. Jelles, the prison hangman, shot down and saw his body tossed out of the cell house window.

He stood by while Daniels asked Abe Wiggins, another guard, if he had "said his prayers."

"Yes," Wiggin replied without emotion. "Where do you want me to stand?"

He heard Daniels say, "Right where you are," and saw Daniels fire a bullet through Wiggins' head.

He heard Daniels tell John Shea, another guard, to take Wiggins' body out to the warden, and tell him that 'Marvin Duncan would be the next guard to die.'"

That was at 9:30 P. M. From then until he lost his mind Duncan expected each moment to be his last. Prison physicians said his condition resembled shell shock.

PREPARED FOR SIEGE.

The convicts had made provision for a long siege. In one of the cells they had stacked 25 huge loaves of prison bread.

Two long butcher knives that might have been used as weapons were found nearby.

In their efforts to dislodge the convicts, national guardsmen advanced upon the prison cell houses half a dozen times under cover of a machine gun barrage. Each time they were forced to retire without gaining their objective.

The idea of dynamiting the convict stronghold was then advanced and a Catholic priest, Rev. Patrick O'Neil of Holy Cross Academy, proved the hero of the day. The priest acted after three prison guards had been tossed out dead by their convict captors.

Exclaiming, "I can stand this no longer," the priest volunteered to place dynamite against the walls of the cell house in an effort to blast an opening. William Rainger offered to assist him in the effort.

PRIEST HERO OF DAY

Covered by a barrage from machine guns, the priest made two trips with dynamite across the enclosure to the walls of the mutineers' fortress.

He ran swiftly in the flickering light of burning buildings and despite the fire directed on him by the convicts made the trips safely.

After a long delay in setting off the dynamite the heavy explosion shook the walls of the entire prison, but the walls of the cell house were virtually undamaged.

It was after the dynamite blasts failed to destroy the cell house that field artillery was ordered out to assist in quelling the riot.

The forces engaged in checking the riot totalled about 500. They included police and troops from a dozen cities.

Throughout the night the army outside and the convicts inside kept up their battle of bullets.

The convicts, trapped as they were and balked in their efforts to get outside prison walls, were apparently determined to die fighting.

RIOT SPREAD RAPIDLY

The riot spread with such amazing rapidity that it was in full swing throughout the prison before officials were able to check it. Guns and ammunition appeared from nowhere, it seemed to guards. Armed convicts raced from cell to cell, releasing others and shooting down all who tried to interfere.

Denver policemen, in fast automobiles, raced at 80 miles an hour to the scene. National guardsmen were ordered from nearby points by Adjt.-Gen. Paul P. Newton, acting on orders of Governor William H. Adams.

All wires leading into the prison were cut shortly after the rioting started.

HEROINE OF RIOT

A woman was the heroine of the rebellion. She was Miss Josephine Roche, secretary to the warden. She was the only person in the main office when the mutiny started. Warden Crawford was in Colorado Springs on business.

Miss Roche rose to the emergency like a seasoned general. Her first telephone call brought 250 members of the Canon City Reserve Officers' Training Corps, all of them high school boys, who were assembled at the high school at the time.

They gathered up their rifles from the armory and marched double time to the penitentiary, where they were placed on the walls to prevent any of the prisoners from escaping. They handled their assignment like seasoned campaigners, because not a single man of the 1200 inmates escaped despite the confusion.

Miss Roche's next call was to the governor's office in Denver. It resulted in orders being sent out immediately for Battery C, 158th Artillery, Colorado National Guard, consisting of 30 men, to leave Pueblo for the prison immediately. They arrived, bringing machine guns, which were mounted on the walls.

Like the proverbial woman whose first thought is the fire department in any emergency, Miss Roche also called the local fire fighters. They arrived before the flames burst from the dining room, the first building fired.

When the riot began at least 350 convicts were involved. Within a few hours a massed attack of militiamen resulted in the surrender of 200 prisoners who refused to continue the battle.

GUARDS ARE DOOMED

These were herded into the "bull pen." The remaining 150 convicts took refuge in cell house No. 3, from which they directed the fight throughout the rest of the revolt.

It was at dusk that the ringleaders began sending out ultimatums demanding their freedom and threatening to kill the ten guards they then were holding as hostages.

They demanded the warden furnish them with automobiles for transportation to a safe distance, where the hostages would be released unharmed.

These demands the warden at once began to refuse and with the coming of night the convicts executed their first hostage guard.

Warden Hogsett Fears No Prison Riots Here

No special precautions are being taken at Charlestown State Prison as a result of the Colorado Penitentiary outbreak, Warden James L. Hogsett said today.

The warden pointed out that the State prison is one of the few institutions in the country which has no dining room in which prisoners may congregate and the arsenal is outside the rotunda.

As a matter of fact, since the shooting of Turnkey Fred Pfluger in the prison chapel by Charles Tripp last Armistice day, officials of the jail have been extremely watchful.

Trucks are barred from the yard, inspection of the prison by outsiders has been banned and visitors are closely scrutinized.

Convict Is Killed in Dash for Freedom

Dannemora, N. Y., Oct. 4 (AP)—A 21-year-old convict was killed in a battle with a guard on top the wall of Clinton prison in a desperate attempt to escape.

Niel Mastor of Schenectady, serving 22 years for robbery and assault, was killed by a sub-machine gun fire after he had attacked Jeremiah Callahan, a guard stationed on top of the wall.

Mastor reached the top of the wall by climbing an electric light pole. Callahan, armed only with a guard stick, rushed to meet him.

The convict closed with the guard and attempted to throw him from the wall.

Riot Leader Known by Police as Desperado

Bartlesville Okla., Oct. 4 (AP)—"Danny" A. A. Daniels, leader in the Colorado penitentiary mutiny who committed suicide, was under a $7500 appeal bond in district court here, pending the outcome of his appeal from a robbery charge, officers said here today.

Daniels, they said, was arrested in Coffeyville, Kansas, and returned to Bartlesville, September 30, 1926, on a charge of robbing a wholesale grocery company here. He was convicted and sentenced to serve seven years in the state penitentiary at McAlester.

He was released on bond by J. R. Charlton, district judge, and while awaiting hearing on his appeal engaged in a gun battle with officers at Noawata, Okla., when they attempted to arrest him on a car theft charge. He escaped at that time.

the American cruisers Memphis and Trenton.

A welcoming committee, which had gone down the bay on the city tug Macom, boarded the liner and formally welcomed him to city and nation.

These preliminaries over, Premier MacDonald, his daughter, Miss Ishbel, and members of his party were taken on board the Macom, which proceeded to the tip of Manhattan Island at the Battery. Vessels of all descriptions in the harbor gave the party a mighty whistle salute.

At Governor's Island the guns of Fort Jay thundered a salute of 19 guns.

ACCIDENT AVERTED

An accident was narrowly averted at quarantine when a hawser holding the Macom against the Berengaria parted just as Mr. MacDonald was preparing to step aboard the gangplank.

The Macom slid back several feet, almost pulling the gangplank off her deck. Mr. MacDonald was waved back and a new hawser quickly adjusted. He and his party then clambered aboard the bobbing city tug.

In the little cabin of the Macom, jammed almost to suffocation by a hundred or more reporters Mr. MacDonald submitted to an interview.

After several minor questions, the British Prime Minister, his voice deep with feeling, turned to the purpose of his visit to this country.

CONFIDENT OF GOOD WILL

"I know that I shall find here a great treasure of good will toward England," he said, and after a few remarks concerning the proposed conversations with President Hoover, concluded:

"If we (England and America) stand side by side for peace, who can stand against us?"

He was dressed in formal morning attire, a sprig of heather in his buttonhole, held fast by a bit of plaid ribbon.

One of the reporters asked:

"Do you personally know William B. Shearer?"

Mr. MacDonald looked a bit puzzled for a moment and then, smiling, said:

"I do not believe he is known on the other side."

While her father was being interviewed in the main cabin, Miss Ishbel was in another with a group of women reporters. She was smiling and lighthearted, but rather hesitant to answer questions regarding her impressions of America.

Finally, she said, "Oh, my goodness, I'm missing the skyline," and, asking to be excused, went out on the deck as the Macom steamed slowly through the harbor.

Twelve army planes soared overhead as the marine parade moved up the harbor and a salute of 19 guns boomed out from Governor's Island as the Macom drew abreast the army reservation.

A great wave of cheering rolled along the Battery wall as the crowds there sighted the Macom, and continued until the Macom was securely tied up and the party was coming ashore to get into automobiles for the ride to City Hall.

Among the first to grasp the Premier's hand as he stepped ashore was Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, who, with Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador at Washington, had waited at Pier A for the Premier's party.

GREETED BY WALKER

They exchanged a few words, smiling delightedly at each other, and then the party climbed in cars and started up through the canyons of lower Broadway to the City Hall.

More thousands lined the streets to the station, where another overflow crowd was waiting.

The premier's party was quickly rushed through the station and boarded the train, which left for Washington at 11:33.

There were several bands in City Hall Park, one of them a children's Scottish band, attired in kilts, that shrilled out a Highland greeting to the man from Lossiemouth.

On the steps of City Hall, forming a lane through which Mr. MacDonald ascended, were 150 recent graduates of the police college, tall, brawny chaps in regulation police uniform, but wearing white leggings and white gloves. They saluted as the premier passed between their ranks.

Lining the sidewalk in front of the hall in the front rank was a delegation of 20 Scotchmen in highland costumes, their kilts and sporrans forming a colorful contrast to the severe blue and white of the police uniforms.

Hesitating but a moment on the steps to wave a greeting at the crowd in the plaza, Mr. MacDonald and his party were escorted to the aldermanic chamber, where Mayor James J. Walker and Edward J. Flynn, New York's secretary of state, greeted him in the name of the city and State.

The time being short Mayor Walker launched immediately into his welcoming address and presented the premier an embossed scroll from the city of New York commemorating his visit. The premier made a short response.

The mayor then escorted Mr. MacDonald and his party to their automobiles and they were whisked away for the Pennsylvania station to the special train to Washington.

Griffith Offers Ishbell Chance to See Ball Game

Washington, Oct. 4 (AP)—The wish to see a baseball game expressed on the Atlantic by Ishbel MacDonald may be gratified while her father is visiting President Hoover.

The prime minister's daughter was not sure that the pleasure could be aranged, but any steps to that end will be supported by Clark Griffith, president of the Washington club.

Through the Evening Star, he offered the British visitors the President's box for the Saturday or Sunday games with the Boston Red Sox which close the season.

WASHINGTON IN BRILLIANT GARB FOR M'DONALD

Picked Troops Ready to Escort British Premier to the White House

Washington, Oct. 4 (AP)—A welcome from all America was embodied today in the capital's preparations for greeting Britain's premier.

Washington's celebrated street flags were early a-flutter and a touch of old world splendor was added in honor of the occasion.

Nattily uniformed marines, a battalion of field artillery and two troops of cavalry were ordered to the station to meet Prime Minister MacDonald upon his arrival and escort him along Pennsylvania ave. to the British embassy.

From the embassy, after a brief rest, Mr. MacDonald's first point of call will be the White House, and the long awaited meeting with President Hoover.

This visit was to be brief, long diplomatic custom requiring the first official act to be an exchange of greetings between the visitor and the chief executive.

That formality over, the prime minister was free for an evening of informality and rest after a brief meeting with newspaper correspondents.

WHITE HOUSE GUESTS

Another round of formal calls tomorrow morning—on the vice-president, chief justice, speaker of the House and secretary of state—confronted him, however, before his departure with his daughter, Ishbel, from the British embassy to be guests of President and Mrs. Hoover at the White House.

Whether the President would whisk him away to the quiet of his fishing camp at the headwaters of the Rapidan in Virginia depended on the results of a survey of the roads. The temperature didn't matter for the camp is comfortable, but the condition of the roads after recent heavy rains was important.

Until he leaves October 10 for Philadelphia, New York and Canada, the premier will have only a few hours to do with as he pleases, sandwiched in between formal and informal social functions and the meetings incident to the business of his history making trip.

In addition to administration officials, he will meet many of the members of Congress at social functions and during a visit to the Capitol Monday.

He will be accorded unusual honors at the Capitol. Escorted first to the House floor as it adjourns shortly after noon, he will be given an informal reception by members.

Accompanied probably by his daughter, Ishbel, and by Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador, the premier will proceed then down the longest corridor in the world to the Senate wing and directly into the office of Vice-President Curtis.

There he will be greeted by Senators Watson of Indiana and Robinson of Arkansas, Republican and Democratic leaders, and they, with the Vice-President, will escort him to the Senate floor.

If he accepts an invitation to speak, he will be introduced to the Senate by the Vice-President. If not, a recess will be taken and Mr. Curtis will present him to the membership at an informal reception.

Most of the important luncheon and dinner functions will follow, beginning with the White House dinner Monday night in his honor.

MAY DISCUSS RUSSIA

President Hoover and Premier MacDonald will have ample opportunity for a discussion of many questions in which the two countries have an interest as well as for carrying forward the conversations on naval limitation which Ambassador Dawes initiated at London several months ago as the spokesman for Mr. Hoover.

Relations with Soviet Russia are one of the subjects which it has been suggested may enter into the private conference, and further cooperation of the British Empire with the United States in the enforcement of prohibition in this country may well be another.

Besides Mr. MacDonald's visit to Congress, the Supreme Court and the State Department, other notable events will be journeys to Mt. Vernon, the tomb of the unknown soldier in Arlington cemetery and George Washington University, where the premier will receive the honorary degree of doctor of laws.

U. S. and Britain Pin Hopes on MacDonald, Says Dill

Washington, Oct. 4 (INS)—While New York today was welcoming Premier MacDonald tribute was paid him and his mission on the floor of the Senate.

Senator Dill (D.), of Washington, declared MacDonald's visit "represents the hopes not only of the masses of the British empire but also the masses of this country for world peace."

By a coincidence, the Senate recessed a few minutes after this speech to greet Sergt. Alvin T. York, one of the World War heroes, who was escorted on the floor by Senator McKellar (D.), of Tennessee.

NO DATE WITH NO CHAPERONE

Durham, N. H., Oct. 4—Worried mammas are blamed by University of New Hampshire co-eds for the new rule forbidding "dates" without chaperones, but—

It is yet to be established whether the move against petting parties was inaugurated by the mothers of girl students or the mothers of the boys.

The feminine undergraduates were emphatic today denying that their parents could be at fault.

"Modern girls can look out for themselves and everybody knows it," they declared. "This business of chaperones is just a dodge adopted by doting mumsies of only sons. They're afraid their little boys will be out spooning when they ought to be studying quantitative chem or the binomial theorem.

The masculine student body, not without blushes, turned its collective nose up at the mere notion that the purpose of the chaperones might be to furnish protection for over-susceptible male hearts.

Nevertheless—

There remained a twinkle in the eye of the administration executives. They know the whole story, but they won't tell.

Seeks Speed Mark in Ohio-Brockton Hop

An attempt to establish a speed record from Cleveland, O., to Brockton will be made today by Henry J. Brown, head of the General Tire and Rubber company's "Sky Fleet."

The plane, a Lockheed Vega, powered with a Pratt and Whitney Hornet motor of 525 horsepower, is capable of going 200 miles per hour.

The same ship, with Brown at the controls, won the non-stop races from Los Angeles to Cleveland during the National Air Races at the latter city some weeks ago.

After cavorting over the Brockton Fair, the ship will make the hop to Boston.

American Boy, 15, Scales Matterhorn

New York, Oct. 4—From fellow passengers on the Cunard liner Tuscania it was learned that a plucky 15-year-old schoolboy, Lindsay A. Fowler of New York City, had climbed the Matterhorn while vacationing in Switzerland this summer with his father.

After taking a motion picture record of the adventure to show to friends at home, the boy and his party started the descent, making it in record time.

England Listens in on MacDonald N.Y. Reception

London, Oct. 4 (AP)—England this afternoon listened in on America's welcome to her prime minister.

The speeches exchanged at the ceremonies in New York were clearly audible, especially in the case of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's. The sound of cheers and handclapping frequently interrupted the speeches.

R. I. DOUBLES JAIL GUARD TO AVERT RIOT

Extra Armed Men to Ride on Vans Carrying 75 Under Indictment to Court

Providence, Oct. 4—Alarmed by the mutiny in the Colorado State Penitentiary, following other outbreaks in various parts of the country, officials today took steps to prevent a jail delivery in this State.

Guards were doubled at the State Prison in Cranston, and special precautions are to be taken Monday when 75 prisoners are arraigned in superior court after the Grand Jury reports.

Guards will be doubled on the vans carrying the prisoners from Cranston to the courthouse, and will infest the latter structure, particularly in the criminal court and the lower floor, where the detention room is located.

The grand jury has considered 139 cases, and a large number of men have been arrested on indictment warrants. On Monday they will be brought to the courthouse for arraignment and Superior Court Judge A. A. Capotosto suggested that a sufficient number of guards be provided. High Sheriff Jonathan Andrews immediately took steps to furnish protection and prevent any outbreak.

No one will be admitted to the criminal session except attorneys, reporters, court officers and citizens who may have business there. Guards will be stationed in the courtroom and corridors and inside and outside the cellhouse.

Although Warden Charles Linscott said he did not expect an outbreak at the State prison, officers there were apprehensive and on the alert.

During the past two years 46 men have been sent to the prison on long terms and in the last three months the long-term men have become noticeably friendly with one another. This reversal of their former attitude was noticed after the first outbreak at Dannemora prison in New York and has continued to date. They are being watched carefully.

the fact that among the $10,000 stolen when the safe was robbed was the marked $5 bill.

The bill had been sent to H. W. Rowe, a clerk in the steamboat office, by a girl acquaintance. On it she wrote, "Hold this," and her initials. The clerk held it, placing it in the safe, and it was stolen when the safe was blown.

Tracey served three years at Atlanta for a postoffice robbery.

Four days ago Carpenter passed the marked bill on one of the island boats and it came into the possession of Harold Fradipiro, a purser. The purser traced it to Carpenter, questioned him as to where he might have received it, and the police were notified.

Fisher, police say, served 18 months at New Jersey following conviction on a burglary charge. He was taken into custody by Rhode Island detectives at 2 o'clock this morning at a house in Radcliffe ave., Providence.

Fisher waived extradition and was taken to Taunton. Tracey refused to waive his rights and efforts to extradite him were begun at the State House.

Both men will be questioned in connection with a long series of breaks in New Bedford, Taunton and Fall River and also in connection with the Cape Cod jewel robberies.

State Detective John F. Stokes, Joseph Perean and F. W. Chesmey participated in the arrest of Fisher.

The detectives first became interested in Tracy when it was learned that one of his aliases was Edward Kenney, a name known to them.

Identification of Tracy was made by John Carpenter, who is said to have driven Tracy to the boat company's office on the night of the robbery.

High Court Upholds Restaurant in Suit

The full bench of the Supreme Court yesterday sustained a finding for the defendant made by a judge of the Municipal Court in the case of Abraham Landfield against the Albiani Lunch Company, in which Landfield sought damages for an illness which he claimed was caused by eating unwholesome beans in a restaurant of the defendant company at 103 Summer st. on August 18, 1928.

The trial judge against objection by the plaintiff allowed evidence that no complaints were made by any other customers with regard to beans served in the restaurant on either August 15 or 16, 1928.

Only York Entitled to D. S. C. in Argonne Feat, Says Record

MERRITHEW NOT NAMED IN REPORT

Brookline Soldiers Not Among Men Who Helped to Capture 132

Washington, Oct. 4—Sergt. Alvin C. York's fame as one of the outstanding heroes of the A. E. F. is safe as far as the War Department is concerned, notwithstanding the attack on his record by at least three of his erstwhile "buddies."

York and some of his critics probably will meet today in the military carnival here which depicts the engagement at the Argonne October 8, 1918, where the Tennessee mountaineer is credited with killing 15 Germans and taking 132 prisoners.

The War Department said today it welcomed an investigation of the York award and gave the records in the case.

York was recommended for the D. S. C. and then the Congressional Medal by Col. Richard Wetherill, commander of the 328th Inf., to which York belonged, and the recommendation was forwarded to G. H. Q. after approval all along the line.

On February 7, 1929, Col. Wetherill wrote: "I have personally investigated this case, and in my opinion the conduct of this soldier (York) merits the medal of honor."

WHAT PERSHING ORDERED

Brig.-Gen. J. R. Lindsay, brigade commander, endorsed the recommendation, "after personal investigation, forwarded approved."

On March 1, Gen. Pershing at G. H. Q. issued this order to Maj.-Gen. Duncan commanding general of the 82d Division:

"It is directed that an investigation be made and that recommendations for such awards to the other seven men engaged with him at the time be made as investigation may show to be justified."

Capt. Bertrand Cox, commanding officer of Company G, 328th Infantry (York's company, was "H" and he had taken command of the remainder of G Company) reported, "result of investigation does not justify recommendation for any of the seven men engaged with Sergt. Alvin C. York."

Maj. J. M. Tillman, commanding the 2nd Battalion concurred, and Col. Wetherill wrote this endorsement, "do not deserve recommendation for D. S. C. or special mention."

On March 17, Gen. Lindsay, who had the 164th Brigade, wrote: "After personal investigation would not recommend men with Sergt. York for D. S. C."

MERRITHEW NOT NAMED

The department records show that the seven men with York during his exploit were: Sergt. Bernard Early, New Haven, who is one of those who questioned York's feat; and Privates Percy P. Beardsley, Roxbury, Ct., Patrick J. Donohue, Joseph Knotski, Holyoke, Mass.; George W. Wills, Michael Sacina, and Feddor Sak, all of Company G.

Neither Sergt. Otis B. Merrithew of Brookline, Mass., who asked Senator Walsh (D.) of Massachusetts to take the matter of the award up with the War Department, nor George H. Moreau, also of Brookline, was mentioned in the record. They both were in G company, but presumably were wounded and evacuated before York wiped out the machine gun nest.

All but Sergt. Early made affidavits supporting York's valorous conduct. Two other affidavits were made by Capt. Cox, the company commander, and 1st Lieut. Joseph H. Woods, battalion adjutant, 2nd Bn., 328th Inf.

Britain Plans Call to New Navy Parley

Paris, Oct. 4 (AP)—It was understood here today that the British government already has prepared invitations convoking a five-power naval conference in London the third week in January.

It was reported in international circles that the main difficulty in arriving at a tentative accord between Great Britain and the United States lay in two things: Total tonnage of cruisers, which the United States wants to make as low as possible, and the yardstick of measurement, which fundamentally is a question of how many 6-inch gun cruisers should be regarded as equalling one 8-inch gun cruiser.

Premier Steps Again on U. S. Soil

M'Donald Tells of His Hopes for Success

New York, Oct. 4 (AP)—Anticipating a barrage of questioners from the large delegation of newspapermen which greeted him on board the Berengaria today, Premier MacDonald gave out this prepared statement:

"At the moment of arrival I greet my hosts. His Majesty has honored me by telegraphing his good wishes for the success of a mission which I feel instinctively is to have benefits far beyond the boundaries of the two countries.

"The United States and ourselves are really making an appeal by example to all nations to gather round a council board of peace. So that whilst cherishing their historical past and engaging in all the healthy rivalries of genius, and skill, and work, they will remember the wider unities of a humane civilization.

"You almost make me afraid by the boundless hospitality you seem to be preparing for me. I hope I shall be equal to your kindness.

"The problems of armaments are full of hidden difficulties. And a patient working at details in an atmosphere of mutual confidence is required to overcome them and I crave a judgment from you as generously sympathetic as your welcome is to be generously lavish.

"When I return and it is all over I pray that I shall leave behind me some memories which will make it easy for you to think well of Great Britain and be a reason for close co-operation between your country and mine in the great causes of democracy and liberty which inspire the peoples on both sides of the Atlantic."

HIP SLAPPING UNDER BAN

Washington, Oct. 4—Discontinuance of "hip slapping" of persons returning from abroad by customs agents has been ordered by the Treasury Department.

Announcing the order, Asst. Secretary Lowman said many protests against the practice and other "such undignified methods of attempting to discover contraband" had been received. From time to time persons landing said their hip and coat pockets had been slapped in searching for liquor flasks.

"It is expected," he said, "that inspectors of customs when they suspect a person of having liquor or any other contraband in their possession will search the suspect. This is clearly within the law, but promiscuous 'hip slapping' is not the same thing and has been forbidden."

STUDENT VOTE UNDER FIRE

New Bedford, Oct. 4—Refusal by the Reserve Officers' Training Corps unit at the New Bedford high school to participate in the Pulaski Day exercises here October 13, threatens to cause Polish students in the company to revolt and drew fire from Mayor Charles S. Ashley.

The decision to parade was turned down overwhelmingly but Mayor Ashley declared that he refuses to believe the students will be so unpatriotic.

The mayor announced he will ask a second ballot and will deliver a personal message urging the unit to reconsider.

Bar Cosmetics in B. U. 'Reign of Terror'

A "reign of terror" has descended upon Boston University's College of Liberal Arts. The "brutal" sophomores in the role of "Simon Legree" are driving and "torturing" the poor unsophisticated freshmen. Men and co-eds are treated alike.

The "torture" that is being inflicted upon the newcomers this year is more severe than it has been in many years, despite the fact the College of Business Administration, another department of Boston University, is trying to abolish hazing.

Both the young men and women are forced to wear babies' bonnets of light pink or blue. The sight of youths adorned with these bonnets is pathetically humorous. The young ladies have been barred from using cosmetics and everyone is required to attend chapel.

Another requirement that is giving the upperclassmen a great deal of amusement and the "frosh" discomfort is the ruling which compels the newcomers to walk up the steps of the college backward.

These rulings will last for a week.

The humorous side of the entire matter is that each freshman is taxed 50 cents in order to defray expenses incurred by the upperclassmen for their entertainment.

DEMOCRATS IN NEW MOVE ON TARIFF BILL

Want to Confine Revisions to Increased Rates on the Agricultural Duties

Washington, Oct. 4 (AP)—A move to return the tariff bill to the finance committee, with instructions to confine revisions to increases on agricultural duties will be made by Senator Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, as soon as the Senate takes up the rate schedules.

Thomas said his motion would leave the way open for submission of individual amendments on the floor to the industrial rate schedules, changes in which are provided in the bill in hundreds of instances.

The rate schedules are expected to be reached next week.

20,000 CO-EDS EARN WAY

Washington, Oct. 4—One-fourth of the girls in American colleges are paying their own way in whole or in part, the United States bureau of education declared.

In 1927-28 there were 23,856 college women enrolled in 358 institutions of higher education and they earned more than $5,000,000, the bureau said.

The educational colleges and universities enroll more than three times as many women who are employed compared with self-help women in all other institutions. The greatest number of employed college women are working in Illinois, New York, California, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Minnesota, Ohio and Washington.

The women earning their entire way in 174 co-educational institutions, represent 11 per cent. of 20,292 of the student body of women; of those attending 33 women's colleges only 449, or 2.2 per cent were earning entire support, and of the women attending 15 professional schools and colleges 365, or 55 per cent were entirely self supporting.

Lay Cornerstone of Somerville School

To be erected on the old estate of the first Governor of Massachusetts, the new elementary school building planned for the Ten Hills section in Somerville was given its first start today in the laying of the corner stone. Mayor Leon M. Conwell and the city government conducted the ceremony. In the corner stone box was a copy of the Boston Evening American and other papers.

Star Waits Death's Call

Death's in the prompter's box and Mabel Normand, retired screen star, who has tuberculosis in a Los Angeles hospital, calmly awaits the call. She is shown here with her husband, Lew Cody, in her latest posed photo, which is by International Newsreel.

CAPONE FAILS IN A NEW MOVE

Philadelphia, Oct. 4 (INS)—"Scarface Al" Capone's attempt to secure his freedom was frustrated again today when his application for a parole was rejected by Judge John E. Walsh of Municipal court for "lack of jurisdiction."

The petition of the Chicago racketeer's bodyguard, Frank Cline, also was dismissed. Both are serving sentences of one year in Eastern penitentiary for carrying concealed deadly weapons.

The petitions for paroles were filed by the attorneys for the two convicts on the grounds both had been punished sufficiently. Undaunted by the failure of their second attempt, the attorneys announced they would carry the cases to the State oBard of Pardons at its next meeting in Harrisburg.

Several weeks ago Director of Public Safety L. B. Schofield revealed Capone had offered $50,000 to any attorney who obtained his freedom before his jail term expires.

Sixty-three Enroll in Domestic Science

Sixty-three students coming from nine states, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland, 38 of whom are from the Bay State, were selected for the departments of domestic science and domestic art in the School of Domestic Science, conducted by the Boston Young Women's Christian Association.

The study of foods, cookery, dietetics, chemistry of food, household and institutional management are included in the courses, designed primarily for practical demonstration. Miss Della G. van Steenberg has joined the faculty of the school, it is announced. The evening classes in cookery on Monday and Tuesday nights have opened.

Maine Mill Wins 2nd Safety Prize

Woodland, Me., Oct. 4—Something of an impromptu celebration was staged here by the employes of the St. Croix Paper Co. and citizens generally upon receipt of a telegram from Chicago to the effect that the St. Croix mills, for the second year in succession, had won the first prize and trophy for the best safety record in group B mills in the nationwide competition conducted by the National Safety Council for the first six months of 1929.

Foster Commends Loyalty of W. R. C.

Worcester, Oct. 4—The annual conference of the Massachusetts Department Women's Relief Corps of the G. A. R., was held in Grand Army Hall, with 250 officers and delegates in attendance.

Edwin J. Foster of this city, recently elected commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., praised the splendid loyalty of the women's corps, and reiterated his opposition to the plan for a reunion between the Union and Confederate veterans.

WILD RIDE ENDS IN HOSPITAL

Pittsfield, Oct. 4—A wild ride over the Berkshire Hills Golf Club in a misappropriated automobile landed James J. Proot, gardener, in a haymow, later in the hospital and will eventually land him in court on several charges.

After he had broken the monotony of life in the country by knocking down three fences and tipping the machine over he wandered off to a barn where he was found unconscious in a haymow. He was removed to House of Mercy hospital, where, after treatment, he recovered consciousness.

The police preferred several charges against him, including operating an automobile in a manner to endanger life, operating while under the influence of liquor, taking an automobile without authority of the owner and drunkenness.

Injured Hub Pair Leave Hospital

Dover, N. H., Oct. 4—Arthur Glass of Browning av., Dorchester, Mass., driver of a closed automobile, and George Pierce of West Cottage st., Roxbury, Mass., one of two passengers in his car, who were injured when Glass' car was in collision with one driven by T. E. Kittredge of this city on the Rochester rd., were discharged from the Wentworth hospital.

Both received severe bruises in the accident. Glass was able to drive his car back to Boston. Lilian Glass, who was also a passenger, was unhurt.

Italian Paper Praises Acting of Miss Davies

By PRINCE PIGNATELLI
Universal Service Special Cable

Rome, Oct. 4—Miss Marion Davies' adaptability as an actress finds high commendation in an article devoted to her film, "The Cardboard Lover," by Il Corriere Della Sera. The picture is now showing here. The article says:

"The situations offer Marion Davies an occasion for her customary display of high-class comedy. Her personality, her sensitiveness to caricature and poetry is impressed all over the comedy. It seems as though the author, before writing the play, had said to a friend: 'What will you bet that I shall not be able to make the public swallow this situation?' The prevailing characteristic of the picture is sophistication."

Regarding Nils Asther, the article says:

"He is the latest idol of the American girls, but perhaps comedy is not his forte. Certainly he does not have the love of Miss Davies, who has the speed of lightning. He always appears to be behind hand."

PACIFIST USED VAST SUM IN LOBBYING

Senators to Investigate Their Propaganda Against National Defense

By KENNETH CLARK
Universal Service

Washington, Oct. 4—Seemingly endless funds spent with lavish hands by pacifist and internationalist propaganda organizations to influence Congress for the World Court and against adequate national defense will come under the searching microscope of the Senate lobby investigating committee, it is announced.

Both Senator Caraway (D.), of Arkansas, who sponsored the investigation into the secret activities of the paid favor seekers swarming the capitol, and Senator Norris (R.), of Nebraska, who is likely to be chairman, agreed the doors must be thrown wide open to ferret out every form of lobbying.

The lobby inquiry was voted unanimously by the Senate following the expose in the Hearst newspapers.

Representatives of the organizations which the American Legion, in a resolution adopted at its annual convention, charged were attempting to weaken national defense, will be called to explain the full extent of their funds and activities.

Among these are the National Council for the Prevention of War, the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, the American Civil Liberties Union, the League for Industrial Democracy, the National Students Forum, the War Registers' League, the Young Workers' League, the Young Pioneers and the American Association for the advancement of Atheism.

The Senate judiciary committee will meet Monday to appoint the sub-committee of five to conduct the investigation.

Sen. Caraway (D) of Arkansas, who declined yesterday to be considered as chairman, insisted that Senator Norris should head the inquiry. Norris pleaded he was overwhelmed with other business. But committee members indicated they would persist in their demands that he take the chairmanship.

"I think that when individuals or organizations seek to fix the policy on such important questions as peace or war, they should be willing to tell where the money came from and where it went," said Caraway in stating the pacifist lobby would be included on the committee's agenda.

"I recall that down in my state a peace society tried to bring pressure to bear upon me to recede from my insistence upon reservation five to the World Court protocol." He referred to the American Foundation, Inc., maintaining the American Peace Award, a World Court enthusiasm.

The fifth reservation of the Senate sought to safeguard America's position against advisory opinions being rendered by the court without United States consent.

"That organization must have spent vast sums not only in Arkansas but all over the nation," added Caraway. "It should be investigated.

"The lobbyist, in my opinion, is a half-brother to the grafter. It is important for the country to know where the lobbyist spends the money he gets supposedly to influence Congress.

"I think that in a great many cases these fourflushers filch money from the business man and then do nothing with it but put it in their own pockets.

"When organizations become aware of this they will dry up the source of the lobbyists' revenues."

Senator Brookhart (R.) of Iowa, who has insisted upon an investigation of the "vicious social lobby," will be accommodated, for not only the social lobby but the "bottle lobby" as well will be inquired into, Caraway said.

"I think the 'whiskey lobby' may be still functioning," he explained.

Brookhart, who told the Senate a Wall Street financier gave a dinner to Senators at which pocket flasks were available to the thirsty, is to lay his charges later before the Federal Grand Jury here.

Schools in Boston Mark "Animal Day"

Today was observed in Boston schools and in animal protection circles as "Animal Day," in honor of Saint Francis of Assisi, who called the birds and animals "our little brethren."

Teachers today gave brief talks to their pupils on the desirability of being kind to their "little brethren." Special comment was made at noon in St. Paul's Cathedral.

BODY OF SLAIN WOMAN CLUE TO SUICIDE

South Hero, Vt., Oct. 4 (AP)—With the discovery in a field here of the battered and mutilated body of Mrs. George Desautels of Winooski, 39-year-old mother of two children, police today believed they had found the solution of the suicide, Wednesday, of Arthur Mercure, Winooski fruit store proprietor and "friend of the family."

Mercure jumped to death in the Winooski river, leaving his blood-stained automobile in which Mrs. Desautels had been seen with him several hours earlier.

A motorist stopped on a lonely road discovered the woman's body and, beside it, a hammer and hatchet.

Mercure was 47 and unmarried. He was a familiar visitor at the Desautels home and frequently taken the couple on automobile trips. Acquaintances told police he had recently been troubled by severe headaches.

Mrs. Desautels' husband and two children, Reginald, 15, and Bernice, 15, survive.

100 KILLED IN CHINA BATTLE

London, Oct. 4 (INS)—More than 100 were killed and 200 wounded in a sharp clash between Soviet and Chinese troops near Manchuli, according to a Central News dispatch from Shanghai. Both sides suffered about equally.

Each army blames commencement of hostilities on the other. The Nanking Government is rushing a squadron of airplanes to augment the Chinese frontier forces.

An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Tokio states that 40 Chinese were killed in the Manchuli engagement. The battle is officially described as the worst which has taken place since the Sino-Russian trouble started.

Messages from Mukden state that the Russians opened the attack, charging the Chinese trenches with drawn bayonet. Three hundred and fifty casualties took place in fighting at close quarters, the messages revealed.

September Is Near Employment Record

September was the third best month in six years of the State public employment office, according to a report by Supt. Everett L. Hanna today.

Employers called for 2004 persons in September, while in April and May, 1923, 2154 and 2024 person's respectively, were called for by employers at the office. Building trades are short of the demand, the report said, although a slight improvement was reported in the number of orders from woodworking and furniture shops.

160,000 in Louisville for Legion Sessions

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 4 (AP)—As the American Legion convention ended, official estimates were that it had brought 160,000 visitors to Louisville, including those who came last Tuesday for the parade. Approximately 64,000 persons had registered at hotels.

PACIFIC COAST GUARDS SEEK SOVIET FLIERS

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 4 (AP)—Coast Guard cutters at Sitka and Ketchikan, Alaska, and at Seattle today were ordered to search for the missing Russian plane Land of the Soviets, which left Sitka yesterday at 6:42 a. m., Pacific time, for Seattle and failed to arrive here.

The cutter Cygan at Ketchikan and the cutter Unalga at Sitka were ordered to sail in search of the plane and its crew of four Russians, who were flying from Moscow to New York. The cutter Haida in Seattle was preparing to make a search from the south.

The Land of the Soviets left Sitka despite poor flying weather and strong southeast winds. Coast Guard officers believe the plane alighted either off British Columbia or southeastern Alaska rather than continue against headwinds, rain and low hanging clouds. There are many sheltered but isolated bays along the route the Russians planned to fly.

Coakley to Tell the One Big Issue

In connection with his radio broadcast tonight Daniel H. Coakley, mayoralty candidate, issued the following statement this afternoon:

"Tonight, from station WNAC I shall define the one and only issue in the Boston mayoralty campaign. I shall go on the air promptly at 7:10 instead of the time stated in one of the morning papers. This change in time is due to a New York contract to which the station must give deference. I invite every loyal follower of Hon. Alfred E. Smith to tune in at 7:10 this evening."

FIRST SNOW IN ADIRONDACKS; MERCURY 33

GIRL ACCUSER, 17, TAKES STAND TO BARE PANTAGES "ATTACK"

HER MOTHER IDENTIFIES TORN GOWN

Woman Out of Theater Magnate's Past in Yukon Will Aid the Prosecution

Los Angeles, Oct. 4 (AP)—Eunice Pringle, 17, dancer, today from the witness stand told the principal story by which the prosecution hopes to convict Alexander Pantages, multi-millionaire theater magnate, of statutory assault.

The young university student with aspirations toward dancing fame was called by Dist Atty Fitts after her mother Mrs Lou Irene Pringle, a school teacher, had substantiated many of the prosecutor's contentions.

The mother testified her daughter was a little over 17 years, five months old on August 9, the day of the alleged attack in the theater man's private office, and described the girl's condition that night at police headquarters.

Mrs. Pringle also identified torn clothing as that her daughter had worn the day she went to [illegible] Pantages in an effort to obtain a booking for her dancing act.

ECHO FROM HIS PAST

While the State piled up its evidence against the theater man, a woman from Pantages' past came into the courtroom—Kate Rockwell, who staked him to a dance hall in Alaska in 1898 during the hectic gold rush days. She would not discuss her mission at the trial, but Fitts intimated she might be called to testify against Pantages.

The appearance of Miss Rockwell revived memories of a trial in Washington State courts in 1906 in which she sought an accounting from Pantages, then just launching the theater career which was to carry him to the head of a $15,000,000 chain of show houses.

Miss Rockwell testified in Washington that she owned the dance hall in which Pantages worked as a waiter, but staked him to the house because he promised to marry her. Pantages denied the promise of matrimony, but admitted the association with her. After the trial Miss Rockwell went to a homestead in Bend, Ore., where she has lived since.

CHARGES "FRAME UP"

H. E. Hollum, manager of the theater firm which bought Pantages' properties here, was sentenced to 24 hours in jail for contempt following his objections to a visit of Judge Fricke and the jury to the scene of the alleged attack. The court adjourned to the building to familiarize itself with the details of the location and arrangement of rooms. Hollum, stepping from his office, accosted a juror and Judge Fricke.

In outlining its case to the jury of six women and six men, the defense declared it would prove the charges were an attempt to "frame" the wealthy man preparatory to filing a $500,000 damage suit.

Alimony Puzzle Is Up to Supreme Court

Providence, Oct. 4—Whether a man can earn only $25 a week and yet pay his former wife $50 weekly alimony will be decided by the Supreme Court, which begins the session Monday.

The problem is that presented by the alimony decree which followed the divorce of George E. Boyden scion of wealthy mill owners, by Annie S. Boyden.

Young Boyden who elected to become an investment banker instead of following in the footsteps of his forbears, declares in a sworn statement that he earns only $25 a week.

Mrs Boyden grants that this may be so, but declares that during their married life they lived on a $20,000 yearly plane and that her former husband still receives huge money gifts from his father and indulgent grandfather.

When he fell behind in payments she had him arrested and he settled for $570 he was in arrears. Then he obtained a stay of execution of the alimony decree and volunteered to give his wife and three-year-old baby $15 a week. The case will be one of the first taken up by the high court.

Saturday, —an exceptional selection of SWEATERS

$1.69 for wool and rayon sweaters for girls, misses and women

SEE them, because they show new one-sided necklines and small turn-down collars, as well as the favorite round necks (as in those sketched). FEEL them, because they are light but warming, of closely knitted wool—some with rayon, some with tinsel threads for brightness. MATCH them to your pet skirt and coat, because there are shades to harmonize with fashionable colors in small patterns, narrow stripes, heather effects. BUY them because, now while they are $1.69, they are much less than they would ordinarily be.

$1.94 and $2.94 for tots' embroidered sweaters from Austria

Austrian natives expressed their own ideas of design for babies' and toddlers' clothes in these quaint, colorful sweaters. There are little people and animals embroidered on some, bold geometric patterns knitted into others, unexpected bits of odd figures, all in adorable taste and with considerable artistic feeling. Still they are practical—medium or thick, soft wool—pullover, cardigan, or shoulder-button styles—hardly two alike, $1.94 and $2.94. (Five of them are sketched.)

$2.88 for more formal bags

Everything about these bags is expensive looking. The simple, beautifully proportioned shapes, the colors (no more than two shades in any bag) brown, black, blue, navy; the materials, antelope, suede, calf, patent leather, morocco; the linings of silk moire put in to stay and give service.

$12.94 for girls' coats of "Germania" chinchilla cloth, tweeds, Chase's "Furwove" and fur-trimmed broadcloth

$3.95 for juniors' "college heel" shoes

So the junior may have her share in the growing femininity and formality of fashions—the "college heel" shoes, as sketched, $3.95.

Charge accounts, free deliveries, mail and telephone orders as in the upstairs store.

94c for 3-tone rayon bloomers

Bloomers in these 3-tone effects of blue, green, orchid, tan or flesh may be selected to harmonize with dresses or stockings. And they are of the non-clinging rayon that will not make the least break in the smooth line of your new princess dresses. Sizes 24, 25, 26, 94c.

INSTALLMENT FARES ON EL UNLIKELY

The subject of selling street car and bus transportation on the partial payment plan, which the American Electric Railway Association has been discussing in its convention at Atlantic City, never has been considered by the public trustees of the Boston Elevated, it is stated.

Although it may be talked of by the board at some future date, it is not a near probability that such a scheme will be introduced on the El.

In the absence from the city of [illegible] Hartman, chairman of public trustees, Trustee George [illegible] was appealed to on the matter.

"The trustees never have considered that," Mr. Johnson said. "They [illegible], of course, but if the selling of such tickets, or books or strips of tickets, involved anything less than a 10-cent carfare, it would be out of the question for the Boston Elevated.

"As for the weekly installment, or partial payment plan, in connection with such sales, that feature would not seem to be attractive, because the amount of money a man or a family spends each week for street car transportation is so relatively little that it would hardly appear worth while.

"That's snap judgment, however. More mature deliberation might develop something in favor of the proposition."

The point at Atlantic City was that other commodities are sold on the partial payment plan, and therefore, street railway men declared, why not try to market their transportation services in the same manner?

CAMBRIDGE WOMEN VOTERS

Cambridge women voters want to know who the political candidates are [illegible] ascertain such information a [illegible] is being sent out to [illegible] to office in the Un[illegible]

The Cambridge women voters want not only the name, address of the candidate but his education, his present and previous occupations, whatever elective or legislative positions he has held, what he considers the leading issues of the present municipal campaign, what he considers his qualifications to be for the office he seeks and what he is interested in seeing accomplished by the school committee.

Whatever the answers to these questions will be mailed to each woman voter in Cambridge before the primary. An unusual procedure but no doubt will prove highly effective and a method worthy of repetition and copy in other cities and towns of the Commonwealth.

A "candidates' rally," arranged by the league at Brattle Hall Oct 11, at 8 p. m., will be attended by invited candidates. The questionnaire committee of the league in charge of these letters include Mrs. A. Lawrence Hopkins, 2d, chairman, Mrs. Ralph Beatley, Mrs. Carroll Chase, Mrs. M. A. Crockett, Mrs. J. S. Swaim, Miss Anna Gage, Mrs. Carey Chamberlain, Mrs. John Faull, Mrs. Edward Cummings, Mrs. C. V. Morris, Mrs. K. M. Hagar, Mrs. N. Henry, Mrs. Horace Hildreth, Mrs. Charles Almy, Jr., Mrs. Clark Bennett, Miss Mary L. Allen, Mrs. George H. Parker, Mrs. E. S. Parker, Mrs. F. G. White, Mrs. C. H. Haring, Mrs. John P. Dabney, Mrs. Bennett Sanderson, and Mrs. Arthur M. Schlesinger.

HARWICH WOMAN'S CLUB

The season's first meeting takes place next Tuesday, October 8, in the Community Room, Harwichport Library. The business meeting starts at 2 p. m., and the open meeting three-quarters of an hour later. A fashion show is the afternoon's feature. Mrs. Albert C. Hardacker reports a very successful summer pop concert, the largest ever undertaken by the club.

Also the gratifying and successful sponsoring of a visiting nurse drive. Officers of the club, besides the president, Mrs. Hardacker, are Miss Mary D. Hentz, first vice-president; Mrs. John Snow, second vice-president; Mrs. Harrie D. Handy, secretary, and Mrs. Lawrence B. Robbins, treasurer.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

Editor Boston American.

The squirrels that played in the sunlight of the Granary Burying Ground and took roasted peanuts from the hands of passersby and spent their nights in the cavities of the neighboring trees, much to the disgust of the members of the park commission, have taken the hint and gone elsewhere.

They may be found carrying on their old business a block below on Tremont st. dodging behind the tombstones of the King's Chapel Burying Ground and will be glad to see their old peanut friends at [illegible] quarters.

In answer to a [illegible] for information to this paper, how many were hanged on Boston Common, history replies that the [illegible] of Massachusetts ordered M[illegible] Dyer, mother of three children, a Baptist, to be hanged on Boston Common, together with William Robinson and Marmaduke Stevenson. We have been unable to locate the exact spot, but one writer of the [illegible] that day located the hanging spot near Parkman bandstand. [illegible] were all adjudged witches.

Once in a while Henry Ford says something worth while thinking about, and then, on other matters, slips over. He said recently: "Women don't think on mechanical and industrial matters. They don't want to think much, even in home life." He said other things about women. These are enough to start any fairminded woman.

May I say that women who have an opportunity are greatly interested in mechanical and industrial matters when they are brought [illegible] to them.

I know of several young women who are excellent mechanics and other women who do much to [illegible] industrial complications. I [illegible] women in the astronomy department of Harvard University who are the peers of any man in other institutions and business corporations. We have fine examples of feminine brains. Henry Ford is often short-sighted. This is one instance of it. Certainly men cannot be jealous of the progress of womankind in these days.

A WOMAN OF VISION.

Editor Boston American.

Nothing makes me madder than a bluffer. I have no safety valve to let out my steam except through your "Readers' Column." These bluffers possess a lot of bluff knowledge. You say that makes them bluffers—I believe you. Having a pull with one higher up, they get soft jobs. Then they try to tell you more than they know. You can floor them anytime. I know of a young woman, highly educated, who is a stenographer for one of these abnormals. She knows he cannot spell correctly in dictating letters and he does not know a verb from an adverb. He tries to beat the dictionary at times and attempts to browbeat his stenographer. She has to be as meek as Moses and, like the burning bush that this man saw, it burned but was not consumed. She burns inwardly, but is not consumed by his bluff. Let us show up the bluffers. They are growing in numbers. I hope I have started something.

May I praise the following placing of signs which have more than justified their position in congested Boston: Making Beacon st. a one-way street towards intersecting Tremont st. Making Joy st. from Beacon st. to Mt. Vernon st. a one-way st. Abolishing the right hand turn by a sign leaving Bowdoin st. for Beacon st.

What should be done is to make Park st. a one-way street, making Bowdoin st. from Ashburnton pl. a one-way street towards Cambridge st.

Ashburton pl. and Bowdoin st. is a very dangerous corner, and during the day autos have too much freedom in going anywhere they please.

Make Mt. Vernon st. a one-way street from Joy st. towards Charles st. This is another dangerous corner. One man has been killed here.

There is more need of one-way streets in Boston [illegible] congestion and danger to pedestrians.

PHONE NUMBER PLAYS HAVOC IN NEWTONS

A telephone number discarded by the Newton Water Department has created havoc in the hitherto quiet home of Mrs. D. W. Esler of Wal- [illegible] Newtonville.

All through the day and well into the evening hours Mrs. Esler is called to the telephone by some citizen of Newton bearing a complaint about a water bill, or a request to turn off or turn on household water.

Just because the bills issued by the department still carry on their face that number which was discarded a year ago.

And the number—West Newton [illegible]684 which was inherited by the Esler family is one of the busiest at this time of year.

The family has complained both to the telephone company and to City Hall, but still the house is swamped daily with calls. Oftentimes before those answering the telephone can stop the caller, the complaint is dined into the ears of the innocent listener.

Now, each time the phone rings, the member of the family answering starts out by explaining that their home is not the office of the Water Department. Many times, though, they have found that the [illegible] coming from a friend.

For the information of those who wish to call the Water Department, the correct number is given—West Newton 2880.

AWAIT BUTLER TO STUDY N. E. FOREIGN TRADE

A survey of foreign trade conditions in New England, under direction of the Department of Commerce at Washington, will be instituted upon the return of Hugh Butler, head of the Boston bureau of Foreign and Domestic commerce, from Washington.

Butler left for Washington last night with Dr. Charles E. Artman, economic specialist of the Department of Commerce, who had been in Boston for two days conferring with business leaders of New England regarding the scope and subject matter of the survey.

"The importance of this survey of New England cannot be overestimated in the opinion of those who have been following its developments," Dr. Artman said before leaving, "but its effectiveness will depend upon the whole-hearted support of New England business for its completion."

The survey was expected to be completed by the end of November.

Upon Dr. Artman's arrival in Boston yesterday, from Washington, officers of the New England Council, the New England Export Club of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, Dr. G. B. Roorbach, professor of foreign trade at Harvard, and others met to listen to the outline of the survey plans.

Data will be sought from New England manufacturers as to their foreign business, Dr. Artman said, and will form the basis of the study.

"The study is expected to be the factual basis for the systematic development of the overseas commerce of New England," he explained. "While the individual reports will be kept entirely confidential, the aggregate information is expected to shed much new light on New England's foreign trade. As competition in domestic markets increases, the opportunities in foreign markets are becoming of utmost significance."

Mrs. Hoover Opens Girl Scouts' Drive

Opening the nation-wide effort to raise $3,000,000 for a five-year development of Girl Scout activities, Mrs. Herbert Hoover today issued a statement in which she stated that the greatest needs of the Girl Scouts are "money, leaders and girls."

The national council hopes to expand the organization from its present 290,000 members to more than 600,000 members and to put it on a practically self-supporting basis by the end of the five-year period.

COP BEATEN BY FOUR THUGS NABS ONE

Attacked by four thugs on his way to report for duty at the East Dedham st. station, Patrolman John M. Kelly successfully defended himself and [illegible] gang.

After a knock-down and drag-out fight Kelly emerged with a slightly darkened eye, plenty of bruises and a firm clutch on a man who gave his name as Henry Mc Goldrich, 25, of [illegible] st., South End. He is charged with assault on an officer and police say will be charged in court with attempted robbery.

The patrolman says he knows [illegible] three men and will get warrants for their arrest. But they did not know him when he strolled along Washington st., near East Dedham st., in civilian clothes.

The four men, he says, jumped out of a doorway. Three of them held him and the other started to beat and punch him, while the three holding him attempted to "fish" his pockets.

He fought bitterly, was finally downed, with all four men on top of him, and then he fought his way out of the mixup. Three of the men, nonplussed by his aggressiveness, took to their heels, but Kelly had too good a grip on the fourth.

A complaint made against Dr. Harvey A. Field of River st., Mattapan by George Walters of Kennebec st., Dorchester, caused the arrest, not only of Dr. Field but of Walters as well.

Field was taken in custody on a charge of attempting to perform illegal surgery and Walters as an accessory. Both were held in $5000.

[COOKING SCHOOL NEWS]

Two new double-quick cookies

Grandmother's Sugar Cookies
(Mixing time: 7 minutes)

Remember when you used to slip down the back cellar steps and "swipe" cookies like these from Grandmother's big cookie jar? She had to store them in the cellar to keep them soft and fresh. You can keep them handy anywhere because nowadays they're made with Crisco, a pure, sweet shortening which helps to make them fine flavored and moist—and keeps them so to the very last cookie.

1 cup Crisco
1½ cups sugar
2 eggs, beaten
½ cup thick, sour milk
½ teaspoon soda
3 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
(¼ cup sugar and 1 teaspoon nutmeg)

Blend Crisco and sugar, add beaten eggs. Add sour milk with soda dissolved in it and stir in flour sifted with salt. Don't roll dough—drop by spoonfuls on Criscoed pan. Sprinkle with mixture of sugar and nutmeg. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) for 10 minutes. This makes 50 luscious cookies.

Soft Molasses Cookies
(Mixing time: 10 minutes)

A letter from a man in Ohio tells us that Crisco cookies were left all winter in a summer camp and when found this spring were "amazingly" fresh and sweet. There is something amazing about Crisco's pure sweet flavor and the way it lends its flavor and fresh keeping quality to foods.

1 cup Crisco
1 cup brown sugar
2 eggs well beaten
1 cup molasses
4 cups flour
2 teaspoons ginger
2 teaspoons cinnamon
½ teaspoon soda
1 cup hot coffee
1 teaspoon vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder

Blend sugar and Crisco, add well beaten eggs, molasses, spices and soda mixed with hot coffee. Then add vinegar and beat in the flour sifted with salt and baking powder. Stir well and drop from end of spoon onto Criscoed cookie sheet. Flatten with spatula dipped in water and bake in moderate oven (350° F.) for 10 minutes. This recipe makes about 65 cookies.

• • •

Taste Crisco's sweet, fresh flavor

YOU taste milk. You test eggs. Now taste Crisco—then any other shortening. Then you'll understand why Crisco's own sweet, fresh flavor so improves the taste of your cakes, pies, hot breads, cookies and fried foods.

These recipes have been tested and approved by cooking authorities. You will get best results by using level measurements and the ingredients specified.

CRISCO is used in the Cooking School now being conducted by this paper

MISS MAJESTIC ENTRY LIST TO CLOSE SOON

The surprise announcement that all the theaters in the Netoco chain are now participating in the Miss Majestic Popularity contest bore immediate fruit in the form of a flood of ballots for favorites in the neighborhoods served by the playhouses.

Now that it has been decided that nominations for the contest will close on Saturday of this week, there has also been an increase in the number of names filed as contestants for the prizes. At contest headquarters, 224 Tremont st, the largest number of names yet to be filed in any one day was received yesterday. These and all other entries are being tabulated, and in a short time a bulletin will be posted in the windows at headquarters showing the daily standing of the contestants.

Vote totals to date are also being tabulated and the first list of standings will be published in the Boston Sunday Advertiser next Sunday. From then on it is a merry race to see who will amass the greatest number of votes.

TRIP TO BERMUDA

The ballots now will go to swell the totals of lucky contestants, one of whom is to be given the title of Miss Majestic and with it a prize consisting of a round trip to Bermuda for herself and a companion, with all expenses paid, also a model 181 Majestic radio and a phonograph combination and a complete [illegible] from the [illegible] Stone Shops of Boston.

Second prize winner is to become the owner of a model 92 Majestic radio and also to get a complete sports ensemble. The third place winner is to receive a model 91 Majestic radio and an Elgin, gem-studded white gold wrist watch. Seven other valuable prizes are to be awarded.

During the remainder of the contest all who purchase tickets at the Modern, Beacon or Globe Theaters in Boston, or the East Boston, [illegible] ville or Central Square, [illegible] Liberty, or Morton [illegible] Shawmut or [illegible] Roxbury, the Jamaica [illegible] the Rialto in [illegible] in Norfolk [illegible] the Embassy in Waltham will be given vote coupons good for [illegible] hundred votes each.

POLLS IN THEATERS

Ballot boxes are located in the lobbies of all of these playhouses for the reception of ballots.

Other coupons worth 50 votes each will be printed in the Boston Evening American. Still other coupons worth as much as 10,000 or 17,000 votes each are being distributed by Majestic dealers who are co-operating in the campaign. In all there are eight methods of obtaining votes which may be credited to any contestant.

Nearly 400 girls and women are already in the race but it is by no means too late to enter. Entries may be filed today or tomorrow before midnight. No contestant is yet so far ahead that she cannot be overtaken. "Miss Majestic" may be one of the first whose names were entered or she may be someone who has not yet been nominated.

Nomination coupons may be secured at Miss Majestic Popularity Contest Headquarters, No. 224 Tremont st, Boston, opposite the Majestic Theater or from any Majestic dealer co-operating in the contest.

To assure absolute equality for all contestants and to make certain of complete accuracy in collecting, counting and tabulating votes, the contest management has engaged Clarkson, [illegible] & Co., certified public accountants of Boston, to assume full charge of accounting of votes.

In the picture are E. H. McCarthy, contest director; the Majestic Mystery Maid, Dr. L. S. Kemp of the school and G. W. Pour of the Grigsby-Grunow Company.

Behind such scintillating successes as, for an example, that of Anita Loos, the millionaire authoress of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," is the story of indefatigable industry, Miss Lewis said.

In analyzing the outstanding feminine successes she pointed out that behind the mere surface qualities of beauty, sex charm, personal magnetism was one more of the deep rooted virtues such as patience, "vision," endurance or industry.

"We are very apt to forget these more commonplace virtues and consider only the more glamorous aspects of their success. Every successful woman has had at least one highly developed quality of character which has been largely responsible for her achievement."

"The sudden achievements of very young girls seldom endure. It is the women in their late thirties, forties and fifties in the field of literature who have won out," she said. BURGLAR TAKES SOLES, SUITS

Clothing for the winter and soles for his shoes was the loot a thief took from the cobbler shop of Henry De Luca and the tailor shop of Preto Eppolito on Ferry st, Malden.

The thief stole six pairs of soles from the cobbler shop and an overcoat and suit from the tailor shop. Police think that the man who entered the place made an effort to secure a pair of shoes in the cobbler shop, but failed. Many pairs of shoes were thrown about the shop and the place ransacked.

FORESHADOWING
three new sack coat fashions
tailored by Bond

Let us first introduce the Two-Button Lounge, which this very moment is prime favorite with the largest group of "style authorities" in these United States — our university undergrads. It is tailored by Bond to the specifications laid down by our representatives at Princeton, Michigan, Illinois, and Ohio State. You'll notice that the lapels are real blunt, the padding in the shoulders is very moderate, and the coat is fitted, just a bit, at the hips.

The chap in the middle is wearing a Double-Breasted, that's as British as roast beef; and as smart as Bond Street—London itself! Which is perfectly natural, for that's where this D.B. made its first bow, about a month ago. An original pattern was rushed to the Bond tailor plant — and last week, perfect reproductions reached the 26 Bond stores. We believe you'll like the rolling lapels and widely-spaced buttons, which give this Londoner such a jaunty air.

And, on the extreme right, we have a newcomer from the Continent—the Hi-Peak Sack Coat, with rope shoulders. These new features have been developed by Bond (with the aid of masterly designing by one of the recognized world leaders) to suggest a deep-chested, robust effect that will appeal to a lot of well-dressed men.

We invite you to see this new triumvirate with a feeling of pride—for we bring them to you just as they are being introduced by the "upper crust" men's shops—with the same rich fabrics, the same distinguished pattern-designs, the same rare coloring——and yet with one very pleasing difference—the prices!

MODERN ADAM GOES FOODLESS AS HE MAKES SELF MOCCASINS

FASHIONS HIS FIRST CRUDE GARMENTS

McConnell Tells More of Battle Wtih Nature in the Canadian Wilds

By BURT M. McCONNELL
(Copyright, 1929, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Bear-Trap Lake Portage, Oct. 4—Thanks to the provident Indian who cached his moose-hide along the portage, between my rude jack-pine shelter and the unnamed lake to the northward, I spent a fairly comfortable night.

Of course, moose-hide hasn't one-tenth the warmth of caribou; Stefansson's men used tt osleep on the ice o fthe Arctic ocean, in a temperature of 40 degrees below zero, in caribou-skin sleeping bags And entirely naked, too

A moose-hide, on the other hand, is quite porous, the hair is heavy and stiff and without any of the properties which make caribou-skin such a good non-conductor of cold

In announcing my plan the first week in September I said I might be too busy during the next two days in the woods to think about food.

NO FOOD FOR TWO DAYS.

This has turned out to be the case; I haven't eaten a thing in the past two days. I might have set some rabbit snares, I suppose, but a pair of mocasins seemed to me much more necessary than food.

I spent the daylight hours yesterday making a pair of moccasins and cutting out the main portion of a shirt from the moose hide. With another cold night facing me these two items of clothing assumed great importance. The hide is as stiff as a board, but the footgear I have fashioned, with an inner sole of moose hide with the hair left on, is quite comfortable and more or less waterproof.

It was quite a task to make them. First came the measurements and pattern, then the cutting. This was finished in about two hours; the really hard job was yet to come—the task of shaving the hair from one and three-quarters inches to a quarter of an inch That sounds like a simple operation, when one has an axe. And it probably would have been if this particular hide had not been filled with sand and dirt.

The dried mud in th skin so dulled my axe that I had to stop shaving the hide every five minutes or so to sharpen the blade on a rock

So the making of moccasins took most of my day; there was no time for food, fire or hunting.

True, I had made a skin-scraper of deer horn, but it made no impression whatever on the stiff hide The skin of the old bull is so stiff, in fact, that it will stand by itself.

LIKE SUIT OF ARMOR

Sleeping in the sleeveless moose-hide shirt last night was like sleeping in a suit of armor.

The unused portion of the moose-hide I used to cover up my bare legs, while the small deerskin was draped about my shoulders.. And there was none too much, for my thermometer (brought, like my cameras and writing materials, so that I could make a complete record of this experiment) registered 32 degrees above zero in the tent this morning; now, at 11, with the sun filtering down through the jack pines, it registers 42.

Another thing I did yesterday was to locate a spring and clear it out. My camp is located back in the wood, a hundred yards from the portage itself, so that I will not be bothered by chance travelers or hunters. But the slough at the foot of the bluff is more or less stagnant.

Knowing that one's health may not be neglected when one is cut off from civilization, alone, as I am, I walked along the edge of the still water, looking for the spring which I felt certain came out of the bluff somewhere—and found it not more than fifty yards from my shelter.

GUARDING HIS HEALTH.

Since health is a matter of such vital importance to us all, perhaps I should explain that, so far, there have been no noticeable results, either one way or the other, from my abstention from food for the last two days.

If anything, I was weaker yesterday than I am today. My head is perfectly clear, and the "dark brown" taste, so well known "the morning after" in civilization, has been almost entirely eliminated by the plentiful use of charcoal from McKibbin's last campfire.

I have not washed my face in four days, nor have I taken a bath in more than a week, but so far there seems to be no change for the worse.

Just as soon as my clothes are finished, I expect to set out for the lake to the northward, and give it the "once over," taking my axe, of course. If the fishing prospects look good, I may make a raft; a hook of deer horn, attach the hook to a line made of moose-hide, tie a stone to a separate throng, and drop it to the bottom.

It may not catch a trout, but there are pike in the country. I shall also set some rabbit snares with moose hide blackened in the ashes of the fire, and baited with birch twigs. Only after I have had time to fashion a bow and some arrows will I start n search of bigger game.

If a moose comes my way, meanwhile, I shall be content to get a motion picture of him with my telescopic lens.

EX-MARSHFIELD ACTOR HELD AS SLAYER

Philip Yale Drew Accused of Causing Death of Man in England

London, Oct. 4.—Philip Yale Drew, an actor of Marshfield Hills, Mass., who played the role of a detective in "The Monster," is being held today in Reading facing possible trial for the slaying of a tobacconist during a robbery there five months ago.

Drew claims to be a descendant in the ninth generation of Peregrine White, born on the Mayflower in 1620 while the Pilgrim colonists of Plymouth were en route to the New World

He has been identified by two persons as having been in or near the shop in Reading when the tobacconist, Alfred Oliver, 60, was slain. Mrs. Alice James, a caretaker across the street from the shop, testified at a coroner's inquest that she saw Drew on the night of the slaying just outside the shop wiping blood from his face.

TELLS OF CAREER

George Loxton, a butcher, identified Drew as an "eccentric man" whom he saw hatless and agitated near Oliver's shop about the time of the murder.

Drew seemed unperturbed as the coroner asked him to stand for identification by Mrs. James He chewed the end of an unlit cigar and smiled

In interviews with newspapermen Drew recounted his career He said he was born at Marshfield Hills, Mass

Drew said that he had a perfect alibi, having been in his dressing room in the theater when the murder was committed He said that detectives from Scotland Yard had treated him courteously, and that in the six hours' talk with them he had told them all he knew that could possibly have any bearing on the case.

"I will certainly go on the witness stand," he said "I have the greatest confidence in British justice and, since I am innocent I have nothing to fear and nothing to hide"

WARNS AGAINST LOSS OF FATE'S GREATEST GIFT

Beatrice Fairfax Tells Girls to Keep Ring and Gifts

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

MISS M. has written me a most indignant letter. It is all about gifts. At first I thought I would merely answer the one or two simple questions she asked regarding return of presents from a young man. Then I decided that Miss M's letter needs more than a casual reply. It is such a foolish, blind sort of letter, from a girl who is throwing away a great gift offered her by fate, because of a tiny flaw that mars its perfection

I am not referring to the gift of the engagement ring or the "three-piece toilet set"—which came at Christmas or to the "box of candy which was never opened"—that arrived on her birthday "last Wednesday." The gift Miss M takes for granted is the gift of a young man's earnest, serious love, proved by his request that she become his wife

It seems her fiance is shy. "I will admit that he is a timid and quiet type of young man, her letter states, then goes on to explain that nearly every time he saw her parents, he neglected to greet them For this, she could not forgive him

It seems he liked her parents but unconquerable shyness, combined possibly, with a certain lack of poise, due to being unaccustomed to meeting many people caused him to continue to pass them by without greeting

Miss M's birthday was, as she puts it, "the last straw" On that occasion, her fiance came to her home armed with his box of candy for her and deliberately walked past my parents to be presented to my relatives" without saying "Good evening"

Have a heart Miss M Can't imagine how painfully bashful and ill-at-ease the young man felt, as he prepared to face what is a really terrible ordeal to shy folks—meeting strangers! In his self-consciousness, he probably forgot your parents were present He was suffering an agony of self-consciousness and bashfulness

After all, his fault of seeming rudeness, due to shyness, is only a surface one. Men of brilliant intellect and great heart are often bashful as blushing schoolboys And their wives and sweethearts if they be appreciative and understanding love them the more for this lack of self confidence and conceit

You loved your fiance, or to quote your letter, "Imagined yourself in love with him" Yet a defect of social grace on his part—a defect of which a Lincoln might have been guilty—made you so furious that you broke up with him and returned his ring

The problem that is worrying you now is whether you shall also return his Christmas and birthday gifts"

An engagement ring should be returned always, in case of severed diplomatic relations' with the young man who presented it, for the reason that the relationship of which it is the symbol, no longer exists. The other gifts I would keep if I were you, rather than cheapen yourself and him by offering to return them

His greatest gift of all to you, of course, you have returned quite [illegible] the gift of his love! Are you sure you will not wish later on you had returned that gift?

You may fancy yourself in love with another young man one day but if you look for faults with critical and unsympathetic eyes you will find faults in him, also equally unforgivable. Perfect young men do not exist. If they did they would be far too perfect for very [illegible] ladies. The important thing to a man you are attracted to sufficiently to [illegible] my dear is [illegible] are all [illegible] should be. Are you sure that you yourself, are not just the least bit at fault, in this instance? I make the suggestion in making a mountain out of a mole-hill and failing to appreciate the finest gift any man can make to any girl—the gift of his name and his love?

MANY FRUITS FOR FALL HOUSEHOLD USE

IN ancient times fruit was usually eaten raw as the climax of a gorgeous banquet. The peaches of Persia, the plums of Japan, the pomegranate of Asia were all [illegible] famous in this fashion

But as modern cooks began to vie with each other, more and more confection containing fruits began to appear in the homes of the wealthy. And what a [illegible] there was about these new desserts!

They were confined to the homes of the rich, because in those days fruits were a luxury. When pine apples were newly introduced to Europe from South America they had to be grown in greenhouses and cost at least a guinea apiece In the winter, when the weather was cold, the moneyed classes of Europe depended entirely on greenhouses for their fruits, or, in the South, on imports from the warmer Asian countries

It was not until the middle of the last century that Nicholas Appert the French genius, discovered the method which has given us fruit the year around—canning. Today no one considers going without fruit in the winter any more than in the summer. The only difference is that when fresh fruits are expensive, canned ones are used in their place. Or when fruit is to be used in cooking, canned fruit is employed. Canned pineapple is always used in making gelatin desserts because the fresh pineapple contains an enzyme which will prevent the gelatin from solidifying If fresh pineapple is to be used, it must be thoroughly cooked and what a waste of time and labor that is, when there on the shelf is a can of pineapple all ready to use

In the days of the Holy Roman Empire Egypt used to be the center for growing prune plums But the voyage from Egypt to Rome was so long that the fruit would spoil so the inventive Egyptians evolved the system of drying the fruit before shipping. For hundreds of years the same method was followed, but today fresh prunes are being canned just as is any other fruit; the only difference is that the prunes are particularly good, for they contain a large amount of fruit sugar

Some of the fruits canned today are rarely seen in any other form. Loganberries those luscious red fruits which are longer and tangier than a red raspberry, are so delicate that they will not stand shipment well. Consequently, few find their way to market in fresh form from their home in Washington and Oregon The larger part of the crop is canned in sanitary enamel lined cans which preserve their color perfectly and are then shipped to the consumer

Many of the other canned fruits especially brightly colored ones are put up in these sanitary enamel lined cans to preserve their color and appearance These include, in addition to loganberries, apple butter, cherries, black, red and white cranberries, fruits for salad, grapes prunes in syrup, raspberries, black and red rhubarb, strawberries and wine fruit salad

The fruits which are obtainable in ordinary sanitary cans are apples, baked; apple sauce apples sliced and whole; apricots, halves and wholes; blackberries, blueberries, crabapples, currants, figs, fruit cocktails, gooseberries, grape fruit, peaches, diced, halves sliced [illegible] pears, [illegible] crushed [illegible] plums, prunes, dry, [illegible] raisins

A survey of these lists shows how varied [illegible] There are very few of the temperate zone fruits which cannot be enjoyed in winter as well as in summer

For [illegible] winter use [illegible] cooks have designed new and delicious recipes. [illegible] waffles for instance which will be acclaimed at any S[illegible] per contain pineapple. To make the waffles [illegible] well and [illegible] fourths cups [illegible] cups of flour with four teaspoons of baking powder and one-half teaspoon of salt, add to first mixture Stir in six tablespoons of melted butter and [illegible] cup of drained, crushed pineapple Fold in three stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake on a hot waffle iron right at the table Serve with pineapple syrup and [illegible] cubes of plain American cheese

Canned fruits are [illegible] delicious for sherbert bases. A new product, crushed peaches, which is made of fruit which is not full colored or of a commercial size but which is sweet and piquant is much used in pie fillings ice cream, as a marmalade and in made desserts

Every [illegible] new canned fruits appear or familiar fruits are canned in a new way. How envious the old-time epicures would be if they could see our array of 42 possible fruits for dessert reposing on our pantry shelves in the winter

FIRST LESSONS IN ART

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

I WISH you could all have read an article written recently by May Irene Copinger concerning art as it is taught in the public schools of Baltimore. Lucky is the child who can enjoy this course and other courses of like scope and interest.

Upon re-reading it, it occurred to me that mothers might profit vastly by knowing the outline of the course, particularly as it is begun in the first grade. There is hardly a toddler at home who does not reach for father's pencil, or grab eagerly the colored crayons which were given to him on his birthday

One of the aims of this course is to teach little children an appreciation of art.

To quote from Miss Copinger "The small child studies the modern period, and that period is presented in its most interesting aspect. What could be more interesting and important to a child than food? So it is through food that the first grade child is introduced to his art period. After food there is the question of clothing to be considered; then the neighboring buildings with which the child is familiar. Familiar machinery utensils and tools used by the family and community are utilized in this modern method of studying art

Food! Why of course Your three or four-year-old will love to make a round disk for an apple And perhaps cut a round white disk a bit larger for a plate for it Cutting plain white oblongs folded to hang on a string are sheets and pillow slips for wash day. A shallow box turned upside down and ends rounded like a sled can be made red with crayons or water colors. In other words, your child can reproduce with color, or paper or boxes, and many other mediums life as he knows it and sees it.

Encourage the child to picture "life as it appeals to him." Let him express his emotions in line and color. For instance, my tiny daughter sent me a pencil sketch once which was titled: "Mommie, Laughing" No Mommie hoped she didn't look quite like the face portrayed, but the humor lines were there, and whoever it was, she surely was laughing

Let your child reproduce the intimate interests of daily life which interest him Make crayons and paints mean growth instead of ruination to objects in the home

CHAPTER 41

WHEN they drove up to the little police station that night Jim refused to let Ann Marie set foot in it.

"No, you're not going to get yourself mixed up in this thing if I can help it," he told her. "This is my part of the country and I've known these people up here for years. I'm pretty sure I can get everything straightened out without much trouble"

Ann Marie watched his tall figure disappear behind the gray veils of rain. She saw the door of the police station open and shut as he stepped into it

Four or five minutes went slowly by Ann Marie began to be nervous.

Then the door opened again and a motorcycle policeman stepped out into the rain and the darkness

He came across the wet sidewalk toward his motorcycle, which was parked at the curb just in front of Jim's car He stood there a moment, lighting a cigarette.

Ann Marie opened the door of the car and called to him.

"Did you see a couple in the station who were arrested tonight in an automobile?" she asked him In an automobile that the police thought they had stolen?"

He threw his match down into the gutter and came up to the side of Jim's car

"Did I see 'em?" he asked. "Lady, I arrested 'em!" He threw back his head and let out a great laugh "And, believe me, next time they have any mugging to do they won't stop to do it on a country highway!—And they won't bawl out an officer of the law, I bet you, either!—If it hadn't been for Mr. Goodwin they'd have spent the night in jail. We all thought they had a stolen car"

"I see," said Ann Marie with stiff lips. "It's my car. I let them have it. . . . Is Mr. Goodwin getting everything straightened out?"

The road policeman nodded, touching the visor of his cap as he backed away

"Sure. They'll all be out in a minute now," he answered. And as he spoke the door opened and Alice and Neal came walking out of the building arm and arm.

For a minute or two they stood at the top of the steps under the light globes with the legend "Police Station" painted on them in black letters.

Then, still with their arms linked they ran down the wet steps and around the corner of the building where Ann Marie's car was parked in the streaming darkness.

Above the sound of the rain and the wind she could hear them laughing together and they ran to it The door slammed and they drove away towards town.

"They never came near me," Ann Marie said quietly to Jim when he came back to her and started his own car. "After I'd come all this way up here, too!" Low as her voice was, it was full of hurt and resentment.

"I didn't say anything to them about you being here," Jim answered. "I may as well be honest with you—I was afraid that Neal would want you to ride back with him if he knew you'd come up with me. And this is probably the last ride I'll ever have with you."

Ann Marie said nothing, just stared at the wet black road ahead of her

"But whether we ever see each other again,' he added after a long pause," I want you to know that if ever you need a friend you can count on me."

He stopped for a moment more as if he didn't know how to go on

Then suddenly he spoke again slowly, as if it were hard for him to say what he had to say

"Neal and I have known each other for a good many years He's a fine chap and my greatest wish is that you will be happy with him I am sure you will be happy with him"

He sounded as if he were trying to convince himself that she would be happy with Neal and only half believed it, himself

He had been driving slowly But now he stepped on the gas and [illegible] if he could get back to Perry st. soon enough

The great purring car raced with the wind all the way back to town

* * *

Neal was waiting for her when she reached the top floor at Susquehanna Hall

The door of his studio stood open and through the doorway she could see him walking slowly up and down in the long room with his hands in his pockets and his eyes on the floor

He stopped and looked up as she paused on his threshold.

"Oh, so you're here at last!" he said sarcastically "Well did you have a pleasant evening?"

Ann Marie came into the big untidy room that always smelled of gin and cigarettes these days. She closed the door behind her and stood with her shoulders against it

"You ought to know what kind of [illegible] evening I had,' she repeated, and there was a sharp little edge to her voice.

"Well, I know that you had Jim Goodwin down in your office with you at 9 o'clock, when I telephoned here I know that much for sure and I'm pretty sure that you just were driving back to town with him. You did, didn't you?"

She nodded She wasn't going to tell him even the shadow of a lie

"I did . . . he drove me up to Connecticut to get you and Alice out of the fix you were in There wasn't anything wrong about that" she said frankly. "But you—you were arrested because you were parked on a side-road making love to Alice in the car! The motorcycle policeman told me so!—You're in love with her, and you keep telling me you aren't! Why don't you be honest with me?"

He [illegible] Why [illegible] Just because a cop says he [illegible]

"N[illegible] Ann Marie [illegible]

I've noticed things myself [illegible]

[illegible] You've never spoken a [illegible] ME

Ann Marie shook her head with its wet brown-gold curls plastered against her cheeks [illegible]

"You can't say [illegible]" she said "I know [illegible]"

She was thinking of the time she had paid for the dinner the two of them had had at S[illegible] roadhouse back home Of the money she had let him take since she had been here in New York. Of the food she had bought for him and for Alice and for Jeanie during the last two or three weeks Of the car she had bought and had not even had a ride in yet!

But she did not mention any of those things to him, as most people would have done.

"I know I haven't a ghost of a chance to keep you if Jim Goodwin's after you," Neal was saying now, and all the anger had died [illegible]

[illegible] plotting [illegible]

"Now [illegible] I can't care how [illegible]

[illegible] to Ann[illegible] just tonight. I told Jim Goodwin I couldn't see him any more. I was telling him that I wouldn't drive home with him when you called up from that police station. Please to believe me, Neal"

She came to him and laid her hands on his shoulders and kissed him

He kissed her back, but not as quickly as if her heart was in it

"I'd hate to think that Jim Goodwin could cut me out with any girl!" he said bitterly. "And I know he couldn't if he didn't have all that money of his!"

She had turned away and was going into her own rooms to go to bed when he called her back

"No more of that business of working at night down-town! Understand?" he asked, like some commanding officer giving orders to a rookie.

He flushed as the thought came to him "She means Corinna"

Corinna Dugan a jealous anger burning at her heart stood with her head regally uplifted in Julian's beauty-parlor.

"I shan't wait on her, I say. One of you other girls can have her Why should she wish herself on ME when already I've more customers than I can handle?"

"Because you're a sweet, good-natured dear, and she's taken a shine to you, like we all do." This from one of the operators

"Don't be a fool, Corinna," cried another 'Miss Van Wyck may be difficult and all, but she tips generously And she's any amount of pull with the boss, and well we know it. Her word goes, and you'd be a fool to fall out with her"

"I shan't fall out with her I want to avoid her I'm sick and tired of her stories and whims and selfishness."

"What of it? She's your bread and butter, isn't she? Can't you turn a deaf ear to her boastings? I tell you she's brought her whole gang to this shop, and she stands mighty high with Julian. If you ditch her now, he'll want to know the reason He'll pitch into you good and plenty."

"What do I care?" Corinna was obstinate.

Weak Banks Will Pass to Strong

What Mellon Recommends; Comptroller's Talk Is Significant

—By B. C. Forbes—

B. C. Forbes

THE strongest and mo[illegible] ambitious bankers in America who have already carried branches into foreign countries, will find ways and means of going beyond their own localities and will spread over the country.

J P Morgan Company will have just as much reason for ... banging about colossal bank mergers and extending their ramifications to many States ... they have ... for entering the public utility, food distributing, oil and other fields on a gigantic scale. Combinations already effected of Morgan [illegible] New York may well be a preliminary to nation-wide expansion banking-wise.

Charles E Mitchell, upbuilder of America's largest financial institution, has already established through the National City Bank and foreign affiliations, one hundred foreign branches in twenty-six foreign countries and fully a [illegible] any in New York City, while the National City Company has, in addition, several foreign branches. It is hardly conceivable that he will be content to sit idly by and see holding companies formed to ... it and acquire control of banks throughout New York City and farther afield, as is now being done.

Bankers like Albert H. Wiggin of the Chase Bank, William C. Potter of the Guaranty Trust, Chellis A. Austin of the Equitable Trust, also are likely to be found bursting local boundaries and establishing organizations enabling them to supply modern, efficient banking services at many points outside of New York.

Secretary Mellon presumably endorsed the very significant address made yesterday before the American Bankers' Association convention by his comptroller of the currency, John W. Pole. The chief points emphasized by this government banking official:

Congress at its next session should instruct the secretary of the treasury, the governor of the federal reserve board and the comptroller of the Currency to "report the boundaries which they would recommend Congress to set up in establishing definite branch bank areas," but that "such branch banking should not be nation-wide would be generally admitted."

These three safeguards for branch banking should be established: Stricter governmental supervision; adequate capitalization of each parent bank; vesting in the comptroller complete discretion over the establishment and removal of branches.

* * *

The failure of between 5000 and [illegible]0 country banks in the last eight years is "a serious indictment" against the existing system of banking in rural communities.

Metropolitan banks on the other hand, "are in a prosperous condition."

Of America's 29,000 banking offices, already 6000 (over 20 per cent) "are not, strictly speaking, unit or independent banks."

By legalizing branch banking group banking would disappear and the country banks would be able to do business with strong city banks."

Finally, if branch banking be not permitted, the indications are that "group banking, under the forces of economic law, may eventually displace the present system of country banks."

* * *

Coming from such a source, these statements and recommendations cannot but attract national, public and political and banking attention.

Congress doubtless would prefer to do nothing calculated to facilitate the expansion of the powers and operations of giant metropolitan bankers and would rather see the continuance of many thousands of small independent banks all over the land. But Congress cannot always thwart economic law. The choice is not between doing something and doing nothing.

Already there have been sufficient developments to demonstrate convincingly that banking can discover ways to become more than local in scope. The vital, practical question is, how can our banking statutes be best adjusted to meet not theories, but actualities?

* * *

Branch banking or group banking—or both—are inevitably coming despite any man-made laws. Shall our bankers be able to carry out their expansion plans legally, openly, above board? Or shall they and should they be obliged to attain their objective by various under-cover methods?

* * *

The eternal decree is that the fittest shall survive. In banking, as in every phase of our economic life, the strong are destined to supplant the weak.

Secretary of Labor Davis predicts in 50 years a day's work will be hardly more effort than pulling a lever or pressing a button.

But traffic congestion will probably be so great the workers will spend all day getting to the button and back.

* * *

Mr. Davis, however, believes "Church, school and college must now begin to train our people for the proper use of the leisure they are going to have."

And Congress had better get busy, too. With greater leisure people won't be satisfied with the few paltry laws now breakable.

Ice cream cones were much in evidence on the streets of Downteville Wednesday.

CLIP THIS PICTURE FOR [illegible]

Today we tear off another [illegible] from The Home [illegible] in the hope that it will help those who are eager to register some emotion but cannot quite decide which emotion to register. Ukm S[illegible]'s Journal

This evening read aloud to my wretch from Mister Muir's Golden Treasury of Knowledgment (in particular his Essay 'Gainst Optimism and Pessimism in which he hold 'tis wisdom to deny all meaning men give to meaning in order that meaning shall have a new meaning) but Lord! I cannot get the wench to so much as nod chin, as her mind is bedeviled with evil yearnings to bleed my purse for a pair of new red heels to her shoon.

NEW NASH CAR MAKES BOW TO PUBLIC TODAY

[illegible]

[illegible] Nash price fields mark a startling [illegible] movement and serve to [illegible] highest level of satisfaction according to H. [illegible] Hart, president Nash [illegible] Company.

Three complete groups—the Twin-Ignition Eight, the Twin-Ignition Six and the Single Six—are [illegible] in this valuable Nash [illegible]. All of the new models are equipped with motors [illegible] to be [illegible] of [illegible] at its [illegible].

Introduction of the Nash Twin-Ignition Eight presents the product of more than three years' intensive [illegible] and experiment by Nash engineers and embraces advancements in eight-cylinder design not obtainable in any motor car built today.

It is powered by an eight-in-line twin-ignition, valve-in-head [illegible] bearing motor; with an integrally counter-balanced, hollow-pin crank shaft; with aluminum alloy Invar strut pistons and aluminum alloy connecting rods capped at the crankshaft end with case hardened steel, a motor that develops 100 horsepower in its 298.6 cubic inches of displacement.

Nash Eight carburetion has been brought to peak efficiency through dual manifolding and a new "high-high" speed jet that cuts in at 50 miles an hour to maintain maximum fuel economy.

New features of the Eight chassis include: Steel jacketed and lifetime-lubricated springs individually tailored to the weight of each car, cable-actuated, internal expanding four-wheel brakes which are self energizing both forward and backward; the world's finest worm and roller steering system, automatic, thermostatically controlled radiator shutters.

The Bijur centralized lubrication system automatically oils 21 chassis points including all spring shackels at the pressure of a convenient foot pedal. Dash button starting control and numerous other advanced features are equally impressive.

Straightened hood lines, wheelbase lengths of 133 and 124 inches and a new Salon body belt line give the Twin-Ignition Eight the long, low, powerful profile characteristic of the smartest of hand built custom cars.

Striking advancements and refinements mark the new "400" Twin-Ignition Six.

Its motor and mechanical units have been refined to the last degree and the frame widened in the rear to provide maximum seating comfort.

All Sedan and Coupe models have an adjustable front seat of new type which provides individual riding comfort.

In the new Single Six Nash has produced, a successor to the Standard Six, will acknowledge no equal at its price.

Lengthened stroke and increased displacement bring about the highest degree of power and responsiveness.

It develops more than 60 horsepower and attains lighting acceleration. Outstanding in the array of salon body innovations are twin ventilators—one located on each side of the top center of the cowl. When opened they direct twin currents of air at precisely the proper angle downward, toward the floor of the front seat compartment.

'SILVER FLEET' REACHES HUB

Attracting widespread attention because of their long tandem of 15 automobiles, the Goodrich "Silver Fleet" arrived in Boston this noon as the climax of its 32,000-mile national trip.

The fleet, after passing through nearly 200 cities in 44 states, was escorted into Boston by a motorcycle police detachment. At City Hall the fleet was greeted by City Treasurer Brier, who signed the goodwill scroll, which now has hundreds of distinguished names.

The fleet was then escorted to 96 Broadway, where the cars were placed on public exhibition for an hour. This afternoon the fleet went to Cambridge, where the city officials extended their congratulations. A visit was made to Harvard.

All day tomorrow will be spent in touring historic spots around Boston and vicinity, including the navy yard. At noon Governor Allen will welcome them and sign the scroll.

On Monday the "Silver Fleet" will continue its trip through New England, spending two more weeks in this section. Trips will be made through Chelsea, Lynn, Lawrence, Lowell and Nashua, after which the party will double back to Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Senate Judiciary Committee, Charged With Investigation of All Lobbyists, Distinguished for Its Courage, Sincerity and Devotion to Public Welfare

W[illegible]

It [illegible] the Senate [illegible] the Hearst [illegible] within the week.

"Why should the Administration at Washington and the United States Senate confine their investigation of the iniquitous activities of lobbyists to one little Mr. Shearer?

"He is not the only persistent and pernicious lobbyist who endeavors to promote the interests of his employers.

"He is not the only one and he is not the worst one.

"Moreover, he is not the most highly compensated one.

"He is not the one who has interfered most with the public benefit.

"He is merely one who has opposed plans of the Administration and incurred the displeasure of certain Government officials.

"There are other lobbyists and worse lobbyists who have opposed the most cherished desires and hopes of the American people.

"There are lobbyists who have tried to promote public plunder.

"There are lobbyists who have consistently opposed and eventually defeated measures plainly for the public welfare.

"There are lobbyists who have represented oppressive trusts and greedy tariff barons anxious for laws to enable them to further bind and bleed the public.

"These lobbyists have not been attacked by the Administration. They have not been investigated by the Senate.

"It is time for the citizenship to insist that ALL lobbyists be investigated — those whom the Government opposes and those whom the Government condones and those whom the Government approves and rewards with high offices."

THIS was the demand of the Hearst newspapers. And this is now the sense of the Senate of the United States.

The Caraway resolution was introduced on the twenty-second of last April. But from that day until the first of October, it received no attention from the Senate.

Not until the disclosures by the Hearst newspapers of the employment of a lobbyist by Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, and not until the demand of the Hearst newspapers that the activities of this lobbyist and all other lobbyists be inquired into by the Senate, was the Caraway resolution called up, favorably reported and adopted by the Senate without a dissenting vote.

Clear cut as is this victory for the Hearst newspapers, voicing as they did an irresistible public sentiment, it is an even more significant victory for the coalition of progressive Democrats and Republicans who forced the adoption of the resolution, and can be counted upon to conduct an investigation that will command the confidence of the country and compel remedial legislation by the two houses of Congress.

For the Judiciary Committee of the Senate has been charged with the conduct of this investigation.

* * *

UNDER the chairmanship of Senator Norris, of Nebraska, and with the assistance of such progressives as Senator Borah, of Idaho, and Senator Walsh, of Montana, the Judiciary Committee is distinguished today for its courage, sincerity and unwavering devotion to the public welfare.

Administration lobbyists will get no more consideration from the Judiciary Committee than those lobbyists that have incurred the wrath of the Administration.

All lobbies and all lobbyists and all their activities will be thoroughly probed by this committee.

And when its investigation is completed and its recommendations enacted into law, the American people will have good cause to be grateful to the Judiciary Committee for ridding the Federal Government of one of the most dangerous and disgraceful pests which ever imperiled its work or blemished its character.

British Baby Automobiles

[illegible] Replace Horses in the Army

TWO KINDS OF BRITISH "CAVALRY"

THE baby automobiles in this picture, recently tested by the British army, may be used for scouting in place of cavalry. They are cheap, can go ten times as FAR and five times as FAST as a horse and will stand rough ground, so it is said.

You can see how small the new four-wheeled "cavalry" is, comparing it with a horse beside it.

Horses and automobiles both would amount to little in real war if a sufficient number of swift airplanes were used as low flying "scouts" by an invading enemy.

A row of horses and automobiles and men, such as you see here, if it were a mile long and a mile wide, would be wiped out instantly, men and horses killed, by dropping one single bomb with a deadly gas known to chemists.

Forgetting war, these little automobiles may interest you and interest especially the boys of the country.

An American inventor who has done important work in airplanes, has invented a small automobile of this type, an entirely new idea.

It is said that General Wood, head of the Sears-Roebuck Company, will sell such little cars by mail for less than $200 each, shipping them in boxes that can be used for a garage. Each car will carry two people and do between thirty and forty miles on a gallon of gasoline.

The result will be more complications in the way of congested traffic and a demand greater than ever for the higher priced automobiles.

3-Minute Journeys

By TEMPLE MANNING

LAST week I told you briefly of [illegible]n, the old metropolis of China. It would have been impossible to have told you all about the strange sights and interesting [illegible] this city in the small space of one article so I am going to devote [illegible] to a further trip through the city.

Canton has ever been distinct and separate from the rest of China. It's people have always been superior in [illegible] progressive [illegible] which go to make [illegible]ration. This despite [illegible] squalor or lack [illegible] everyday rule of [illegible] hygiene which one [illegible] in the older native streets.

One of the foremost buildings in Canton is the Temple of the Five Hundred Genii. This contains a vast number of gilded images, all of which have a significance in the religious life of Cantonese. Before each image is an urn into which the worshipers toss their burning joss sticks as a mark of devotion. Among the statues in this temple is a huge effigy of Pau Low, who has been identified as Marco Polo, who was probably the first European to visit China.

Another interesting sight is the so-called City of Dead. This is an area [illegible] with stalls in which repose coffins. The wealth of the dead person's family determines how long the body is kept here, for rentals are high, usually about $150 for three months and $25 a month thereafter.

A funeral in Canton is a sight worth beholding. If it be the funeral of a prominent person the procession is led by a native band producing the most hideous sort of discords. Then come lantern bearers, floral offerings and a sedan chair carrying a veritable feast for the spirit of the deceased. The ancestral tablets follow in another chair; then come the mourners. The whole affair is accompanied by the greatest din, all in an effort to frighten away evil spirits.

In the better streets of Canton will be found shops of every variety, many of them offering high-grade merchandise. This shopping district is carefully divided—one street devoted exclusively to jade carvings and ornaments, another to ivory, a third to laces and the like.

Most of the European life of Canton—the homes, consulates and banks of European nationals — is located in Shameen, reclaimed land near the factory district. Shameen, or "the island," is about two miles from the center of Canton and is [illegible]

New York Day by Day

By O. O. M'INTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 4—Thoughts while strolling: That important glow generated by a friendly wave from a traffic cop. Berton Braley, the jaunty jongleur from Madison, Wis. Cigarette-puffing grandmas. Phil Dunning, who drops in from Ft. Worth weekly in his airplane. A. E. Anson.

One of those "Ziegfeld girls" who cannot forget it. Janitors with drooping mustaches who stand all day at basement doors like statues. Charles E. Mitchell, a Chelsea, Mass., boy, who made good in the city. A fellow with deep [illegible] in his pants smoking a [illegible] pipe.

Baby talkers with [illegible]. The nameless restaurant in West 42d st. Patsy Cain, the theatrical warehouse man. Flappers who cover self-consciousness laughing at passers-by. Palm Beach window displays all ready. Jules Bledsoe's long arms. Claire Luce.

The fascinating travel in steamship office windows. Take a Scotch journey—stay at home and let your mind travel. A Sealyham puppy and a white rabbit curled up together in a window. Chocolates 60 cents a pound again. Whatever became of the Shetland pony?

Hennaed ladies with hard faces and husky voices. Where are the brass tweezers they put in boxes of candy that nobody ever used? An A. D. T. boy running—believe it or not. A xylophone studio. There's a career! That beautiful brunette forelady at 5th ave. Schrafft's.

Almost everybody at some time or other thinks they are losing their mind. Never see a marble cake any more. Complete characterizer: The type who knows the make of every car that passes. The new Sherry's near the Plaza. Pearl Regay, in bright red, steps out of a taxi.

Bide Dudley is only a couple of inches from being snow white. And he's just a child. The chiropodist who sports a turban and a van dyke and rides daily in the park. Jos Shaltz, the tailor. A sale of Lindy hats. Tea time hand-kissers with boot-shaped sideburns.

On the lower East Side they have found a savant who never went to school but who speaks six languages, translates entire Greek dramas, qualified as curator for a museum and is an expert mineralogist.

A guy like that probably knows how they put ships in bottles.

Celebrities arriving in New York must sound their cymbals. A movie star thought he might inspire a little tom-tom beating by the inverse process of slipping into town incognito. He registered under another name, slipped in and [illegible] secret entrance, and otherwise sought seclusion. After ten days of hopeful waiting, he sent for his press agent, touched the trigger and let Park Row have both barrels.

In one of the new theaters they have placed an A before each seat row letter. Thus A K is merely Row K but with the A preceding it customers have an idea they are nearer the stage.

Friday night is becoming ladies' night in the theater. Big boxing matches are held on this evening and wives go to the play and husbands go to the bouts—at least that is their story.

The fact that Steinmetz, the electrical wizard, had a gila monster as a pet was revealed in his biography and caused a few shudders. Yet the intimates of a world-famous manufacturer have been permitted to see a private zoo he has maintained on his estate for years and which includes a nest of copperhead snakes, a family of skunks and a pair of hyenas.

And the den of a playwright who dashes off worldly dramas of the drawing room has a human skeleton dangling from a wire in the corner. What would give most of us the horrors, inspires him to sophisticated dialogue.

On one of the recent sweltering nights a Swedish elevator operator observed to Burns Mantle: "It gets no cooler fast."

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

NEW YORK, Oct. 3—Here's one for hit-and-run drivers to paste on their windshields.

It shows that retribution and justice may be cock-eyed but they don't stutter.

It happened out in Los Angeles this August. One of those smack-and-scramm chauffeurs struck a woman pedestrian and knocked her fifty feet.

Then he played piano on all the foot pedals and looped away at sixty miles per escape hour.

Nobody got his number because a crash-and-rattle driver is like a rabbit. He goes so fast he don't need a tail light.

He must have thought he made a clean getaway. But when the coppers reached the woman's body, they discovered that nobody has ever amended the laws of fate.

Tangled up in the woman's skirt was the front license plate of the bopp-and-scoot driver.

We don't know what the slamm-and-scramm motorist thought when he reached his sheltering garage and discovered that his front license plate was missing.

Probably he hoped that it was dropped off some time ago and that he never noticed it.

But we do know that the cops thought when they saw the plate tangled in the victim's skirt. We were right there at the time.

When arresting a bird like that we have a few items of interest to divulge. First of all, don't grab him by the collar. Kick him in the tonneau.

And don't place him in the police van. Put him on a traffic spot. Then run into him with the police truck. Knock him fifty feet. And stand him up again. Knock him another fifty feet, all in the general direction of the jailhouse.

At the rate of fifty feet a collision, any lowbridging driver would learn a lesson in bruised etiquette by the time he crashed into the cell that was to be his home, sleep coop, for the next twenty years.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

SALLY'S sweetheart's love has cooled. Sally, sobbing, sends me the following verse. Wants to know what I think of it. This is the steenth time young ladies have forwarded this quotation; evidently it's a hot favorite with the broken-hearted.

"For this is wisdom, to love, to live,
To take what Fate or the gods may give—
To ask no question—to make no prayer—
To kiss the lips, and caress the hair—
Speed passion's ebb as you meet its flow—
To have, to hold—and, in time, let go."

What do I think of it?

As a philosophy for fish worms it may be 100 per cent, but as a program for a two-fisted human it's as silly and sloppy a snivel as ever I heard.

"For this is wisdom, to love, to live,
To take what Fate or the gods may give—"

Well, in my experience—and I've had plenty—if THAT'S your attitude toward life, or love, what "Fate or the gods will give" is A GOOD KICK ON THE SHIN! If you want to take life lying down, believe me, they'll LET YOU. And plant a heel in your neck for good measure!

You'll get out of any performance exactly what you put into it and love's no exception. LOVE NEEDS ACTION LIKE EVERY OTHER FORM OF HUMAN PARTNERSHIP.

If you "asked no question and made no prayer" in the insurance business, you'd be bankrupt, pronto. If you tried to run a garage by "kissing the lips and caressing the hair" and leaving the rest to God, somebody else would shortly be selling your heavy oil and putting tubes in your tires. And as for "taking what Fate may give"—just try raising chickens or running a dental office on THAT jelly fish program!

These are horrid commercial examples, but they apply as well to romance as to trade. FOR LOVE, AS WELL AS THE AUTOMOBILE BUSINESS, IS BASED ON PRACTICAL CO-OPERATION IN THE GRIM BUSINESS OF LIVING.

Hair caressing is a delightful amusement for leisure hours, but it won't carry a man through a crash in the market or nerve him to face the grilling monotony of the Same Old Grind. What he needs, then, is the memory of a TRUE COMRADE—the memory of her hearty laugh, the comfort of her understanding mind, the stimulus of her energetic spirit, the backing of a hand and heart which will work as hard and endure so long as his own.

Courage and generosity, humor and imagination, spunk, sense, loyalty, tenderness, grit and initiative—these are the MAKINGS OF LOVE. And unless you can give these makings to YOUR love, Irene, Eunice and Claribelle, you might as well make up your minds to "in time, let go"—FOR YOU CERTAINLY ARE GOING TO BE JARRED LOOSE, GIRLIES.

A Kiss for Corinna

By MAY CHRISTIE

A Romance of Love of a Girl and a Rich Man

CHAPTER 32

DENISE VAN WYCK—her beauty shining pearl-like underneath the stars faced Malvey in the patio of the Countess de Santalvos.

Enchanting strains of "Sole Mio," sung by the famous Gamberetti, drifted from the open windows. They blended magically and romantically with the tired splashing of the fountain.

"You too—you're beautiful!" These words had escaped the young man who was gazing at Denise as though she were a bright vision from another planet.

A thrill of excitement that was chiefly triumph passed through her slim body. This speedy capitulation—it was going to be much easier than she had imagined.

But, though she was young, she had learned that it was sometimes folly to force too quick an issue.

Were she to yield now to this charm and to the [illegible] ation of this moment, tomorrow in the cold light of day he wo[illegible] look back on events and sum her up [illegible] cheap and "ready."

No doubt the little beauty-parlor girl permitted all sorts of familiarities. Denise told herself she must make an effort to be different. Must keep herself on a higher level.

Wasn't she Mr. Criswell's niece? Practically the a[illegible] daughter of the head of the important firm of stockbrokers? Where the young man was concerned that ought to give her a lot of influence.

She said now—because he fascinated her and was so attractive, her usually shrill voice had quite a sweet timbre in it:

"Beautiful? You must see me through rose-colored glasses, Malvey! It's very sweet of you to flatter me. But what I want from you is not idle compliments, but your friendship."

This was a masterstroke. Had she lured him on to kiss her, he would have been furious with himself afterward—because of Corinna.

"Friendship is the most wonderful thing in the world," said Denise Van Wyck sententiously as she moved over to the rustic bench beside the fountain and made way for him beside her. (Lucky to have grabbed this location before the others trooped out and got either the position or the young man away from her!)

Now Malvey had sat here earlier in the evening with the Countess de Santalvos. With her wisecracks and meanderings on love, the Countess had made him feel a little awkward.

But friendship—that was a safe, a very different matter.

"I feel," said the girl beside him, lighting a cigarette and blowing a ring of smoke into the air and watching it circle, "that nearly all contact between men and women seem to go up in smoke—like this! Poor Natalie, for instance! She was complaining to you, wasn't she, about the way men treat her? Now things would be quite different with Natalie if she would only offer friendship and stop being so stupidly sentimental."

"But you said, yourself, that real friends are scarce?"

(Was this going too far? She wondered. Was it subtle enough? But one MUST seize one's opportunities—act quickly—)

In the same gentle, ruminative tone Denise went on: "It was extraordinary how easy I found you to talk to. You drew me out—I've been quite different ever since. I'm quite honest in saying I do want to amount to something."

"You mustn't miscall yourself," said Malvey, "just as you are you give a great deal of pleasure—just by looking at you!"

Now—from the time she was a spoiled, imperious child who fought with her nurses and broke her toys when she was tired of them and insisted to taking the center of the stage in all and every circumstance—no one had ever accused Denise Van Wyck of thinking too little of herself! Quite to the contrary.

It was a new sensation.

"You mean it? Sincerely?"

The scent of the lilies was a sweet fragrance about them.

"Of course I do. But I fully sympathize with you for being ambitious."

Ambitious! That was the note on which to harp. Through his ambitions lay the best, the most permanent way to get at him.

His tongue was loosened. He forgot entirely that he was speaking to Mr. Crisswell's niece, and confided in her all his hopes and ambitions.

But if her uncle knew she was definitely interested in this young man, who was reliable and ambitious and clever, he might do a whole lot to advance him more rapidly.

As for the question of money, her uncle—if he approved her choice, and he had a high opinion of Malvey—would give her a large dowry. Moreover, Malvey had in himself the makings of a fortune.

When he broke off to light another cigarette for her, she said, ever so softly: "I think it's simply

COLLEGE GIRLS SEEK 'APPLE' AS MALE IDEAL

Wellesley Students Eschew 'Cabbage' With Solid Head and 'Faultless' Exterior

Wellesley College's 'perfect man' ought to be chosen, not, like a cabbage, for a solid head and a faultless exterior, but rather "like an apple, good all the way through with a few outside flaws excused if the flavor is right."

Theirs was the "cabbage" and "apple" metaphor. They added a few tips as to personal preferences. Other things being equal they said they'd like their sweetie "still curly haired [illegible] not too handsome, but with strong, [illegible] tive hands."

The ENGLISH bake-shops have come ... ovens, traditions and all ... to make the delicious "BISCUIT" for America

THE traditional confection of Old England is the famous "English Biscuit." It is the product of baking lore evolved through the generations, and of secrets handed down from father to son. Made of the finest blended flours, flavored with chocolate, maple or fruits, and having as an ingredient butter so special that the finest table butter will not do, these biscuits, or "little cakes," as Americans call them, are the finest of small pastries.

Heretofore these biscuits have been available only to visitors to England and Americans who imported them.

But now the English bake-shops have come to America. English ovens are baking for Americans the incomparable "biscuit" that only English implements and tradition can produce.

Crisply elegant, deliciously flavored, fresh—and ready to serve with your tea, your 'twixt-meal snack or with dessert, just as if you were in England.

Your store has them in bulk or in smart pound packages; and these Weston's English Quality Biscuits will cost you no more than you have been paying for ordinary cakes and cookies.

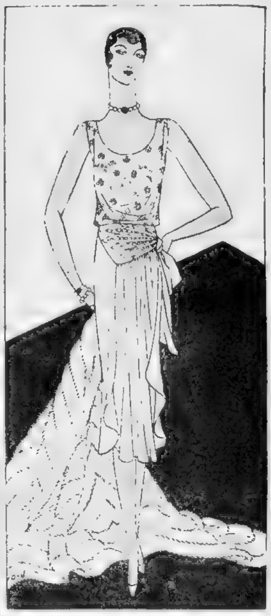
WHITE EVENING GOWNS ARE VOGUE FOR COMING SEASON

SKETCHED IN PARIS



White Wraps Also on Display in Leading Shops

Paris Bureau of the Boston Evening American.

PARIS, Oct. 4—Dark nights should be light next winter, judging by the extraordinary amount of white evening dresses and wraps, both shown and sold by the leading houses this season. Each establishment has striven to give its own interpretation of the ideal evening outfit, and in most cases the result has been a lovely white creation, displaying at once, both beauty and an individual regard for the most important characteristics of the mode. A slender graceful woman with a clear complexion, and an eye for the minor as well as the essential points of careful grooming, looks her best in white. Many women have discovered that white is a generous ally that, however, admits of no compromise. Unless everything else is in keeping, white can make one look very indifferent, even dowdy, but given proper consideration and attention, it can make of any one of us a queen for a night.

AFTERNOON frocks continue to offer many delightful features and they loom in increasing importance on the horizon of fashion. The style of Raymond's advertising has attracted even more notice and has been pronounced by leading authorities as absolutely unequaled anywhere. The style has been copied in many large cities but without the success or the humorous appeal of the Boston firm.

Uncle Eph, it is announced, will be accompanied to Raymond's Washington st. store by "a delli[illegible] of Toonerville's hylites, among whom will be the elephantine Miss Bascom, Lash Smuggins, Rat Conners, Ez Donlin, Si Tooler an wife, an also many lesser loomynaries."

The reception arranged by Raymond's for Uncle Eph will begin at the store tomorrow morning at 8 30 o'clock. Promptly at that hour, "erly kummers" to the store will be welcomed by the "ithrial strains" of Toonerville's best band.

More than 700 sales persons, it is estimated, will be required to accommodate the crowds expected, and special squads will be delegated from the police and fire departments for duty at the store.

All the departments of Raymond's will participate in the reception including such familiar places as the "Fiddle Room," "Appendix," "Uneasy Basement," "Un[illegible] Suller" and others.

SAYS HE FEELS BETTER THAN IN YEARS

Stationary Engineer and Member of Odd Fellows Owes His Returned Health to Bon-Tone

Indeed it is safe to say that one out of every five people whom you pass on the street are sufferers from some form of stomach trouble, either digestive or kindred organs. This condition is more than prevalent, in fact, it is nation-wide.

Mr. James Campbell

This condition is one which speedily causes one to feel of not the slightest use to the world or to himself. Evils such as Dizziness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Blotches, Bad Taste, Foul Breath, and lots of others too numerous to mention, are easily traced to disorders of the Stomach, Kidneys, Bowels or Liver.

In Bon-Tone you will find a tonic that enters the system and causes all these organs to function properly. It is most aptly called Bon-Tone (THE BEST TONIC).

Thousands of testimonials have been received attesting to the merits of [illegible] but we will let you judge for yourself what Bon-Tone really can do.

Mr. James Campbell of 78 Glenville Avenue, Allston, a stationary engineer employed at 111 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass., and a member of the Odd Fellows, says:

"I am only too glad to recommend Bon-Tone to anyone who is suffering. My motto has always been 'when I found a good thing to pass it along,' and I certainly consider Bon-Tone a good medicine.

"Why, for 10 years I had suffered with stomach trouble. It seemed to me as if my food lodged up in my chest, causing awful pains. I would belch gas for hours at a time, and this condition caused me to worry a great deal. During the night the gas would just seem to crowd around my heart, making it very difficult for me to breathe. I worried a great deal about my condition and as time went on I became very nervous. To [illegible] my troubles I was badly constipated.

"I read and heard so much about Bon-Tone that I thought it certainly wouldn't hurt me to try it, too. After taking several bottles of this medicine it seemed to me that I felt better than in years. I am glad to say that I can eat well and no longer suffer afterwards. I also sleep well, and I have not been bothered with shortness of breath for a long time. [illegible] corrected. I feel great [illegible] I think that Bon-Tone [illegible] medicine every sufferer needs."

Call or write to our Mr. Ryan, the Bon-Tone man, who is meeting the public daily at Epstein Drug Company, Scollay Square, Boston. He will be glad to tell you of other successes that Bon-Tone has had. Bon-Tone is for sale in South Boston at John S. Austin's Drug Store, 436 Broadway, Perkins Square, and in Cambridge at Cole Drug Store, 636 Massachusetts Ave., Central Square.

Guatemala City, Oct. 4 (AP)—Charles A. Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh will begin tomorrow a survey of the ancient Maya Indian ruins in Yucatan and Quintana Roo, Mexico, and British Honduras.

Leaving here today they go to Belize, British Honduras, and from there Saturday to Cozumel Island, off the coast of Quintana Roo, which they will use as a base for about five days' flying over the Yucatan peninsula, where archaeologists agree a civilization surpassing that of the Aztecs and Incas probably once thrived.

FACTS about the prices of new cars which every car buyer should know

In the interest of the public and of our dealers, all advertisements of General Motors cars carry this statement:

> "Consider the delivered price as well as the list (f.o.b.) price when comparing automobile values. Our dealers' delivered prices include only authorized charges for freight and delivery, and the charge for any additional accessories or financing desired."

WHEN you buy a new automobile, it is the delivered price that you actually pay.

The delivered price consists of the list price of the car—the f.o.b. price advertised by the manufacturer—plus certain other charges which the dealer makes.

You are entitled to know what those charges are and what they are for. This information is necessary to properly compare motor car values.

In keeping with General Motors' policy of frankness, General Motors dealers have adopted a standard price tag which explains exactly what their charges are. The tag is attached to the steering wheels of new cars on display in their showrooms. It shows the list price of the car and the following other items:

1. Freight and Delivery. An authorized amount to cover the freight charges paid by the dealer and the cost of unloading, inspecting, supplying fuel and oil—preparing the car for delivery to you.
2. Accessories. A charge for any additional accessories that may be purchased.

The price tag tells all. No other items are added. Nothing is hidden. There is no extra charge to permit a seemingly better trade-in offer. No extra charge to cover advertising, etc. Each charge is fair and reasonable.

General Motors dealers invite you to make their tag your guide in comparing automobile values. The real measure of value is the delivered price—for that is the price you pay.

If you wish to purchase on time payments, find out and compare the finance charges. General Motors dealers offer convenient terms at reasonable cost.

HORWEEN EXPECTS TO USE ENTIRE VARSITY SQUAD IN OPENING GRID FRAY

THE Bates College football team arrived in Boston today set to play Harvard in the opening game of 1929. Immediately after completing hotel arrangements, the squad of about 35 Down Easters, were transported by bus to Soldiers Field, Cambridge, in order to get in their first workout.

Despite the fact that Bates has a light and comparatively inexperienced eleven, Coach Dave Morey was optimistic as to the outcome of tomorrow's struggle. He feels that his team will gain good experience in tomorrow's tilt, which will help them considerably in future games this season.

Head Coach Arnold Horween expects to use every man on his varsity squad in the opening tilt. He is anxious to see how his [illegible] particularly the reserves will shape up against opposition.

Notre Dame-Indiana Game Big Grid Tilt Tomorrow

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

YALE OPENS AGAINST VERMONT

By BILL GRIMES

OF the hundreds of college football games scheduled for tomorrow, the Indiana-Notre Dame battle, which will be staged at Bloomington, is the outstanding contest

Although the barrier was sprung for many college teams last Saturday, Harvard, Yale and Princeton all swing into action for their opening games tomorrow

Due to the weak opposition which will be offered the big three, their contests will create little interest. And the same is true regarding most of the universities and large colleges such as Dartmouth, Pennsylvania, West Point, Columbia and the Navy.

Harvard opens its season with Bates, a team which has passed through two disastrous and scoreless seasons Until Dave Morey, the former Dartmouth star, took over the coaching duties at the Lewiston Institution, the morale of the wearers of the garnet was practically nil

Although Bates is lacking in man power and has not had sufficient time to familarize itself with the Morey type of football, it is playing with a spirit as has not been seen for almost three years in Lewiston

SIMPLE FOOTBALL

Unquestionably Harvard will use nothing but the simplest form of football against Bates tomorrow in the Stadium Coach Horween is grounding his charges thoroughly in the fundamentals and will only use straight running plays against the Morey coached outfit

Also, every available man on the varsity squad will have an opportunity to display his wares.

A week ago N Y U ran up 77 points against Vermont and tomorrow Capt Ratan's charges will be tossed into the Yale bowl to be pummelled by the Bulldogs Like Harvard the blue will derive little benefit and less solace from its game with the Green Mountain boys, while it is an even bet that Vermont by opening the season with N Y U and Yale has tossed away whatever chance it had of winning the State title from Norwich and Middlebury

WEAK OPPONENT FOR GREEN

Dartmouth is also meeting a weak opponent in Hobart, which was snowed under by an avalanche of touchdowns by Syracuse a week ago. In all probability Dartmouth will go through Hobart with the ease it displayed while running up in figures 67 points against Norwich in the opening game.

As Coach Cannell is set upon getting his running attack to function perfectly, Dartmouth will use the same three plays against Hobart that it did against Norwich also, the first and second teams will be relieved for the afternoon after they have played the equivalent of a full quarter each, for not only is Coach Cannell guarding his stars from possible injuries but he is anxious to see his scrubs playing under fire

Unlike the Eastern teams, Notre Dame opens against a strong opponent, the University of Indiana Although the Fighting Irish and the Hoosiers will be far below their top form, this game will be one of the feature attractions of the season at Bloomington and is far and away the best game listed for tomorrow. Minnesota and Northwestern are playing doubleheaders, the former meeting Ripon and Coe, while Coach Hanley will send his Evanston outfit against Butler and Cornell College.

BIG COAST GAME

Out on the Pacific Coast, Oregon State has journeyed down to Los Angeles to play the University of Southern California, while the University of California will be hosts to St. Mary's College at Berkeley

The Tufts squad, under Coach Arthur Sampson, left today for Waterville, where the Brown and Blue will meet Eddie Roundy's Colby eleven, and Boston University, hoping to profit by the mistakes of the West Point game, expects to give Bill Cowell's University of New Hampshire squad an unpleasant afternoon.

Boston College offers the University of Maine, perennial State champions, as a counter attraction to the Harvard-Bates game. Coach Fred Brice is a great football instructor and there is a possibility that he will spring a surprise on the Maroon at Fenway Park, even though the talent at Orono is not up to the standard of the past five years.

4 in Row for Cubs Is Hornsby's Hope

By ROGERS HORNSBY

THE players of the Cubs team feel they have two great wrongs to right in the coming World's Series with the Philadelphia Athletics.

The National League champions have had to bow to the [illegible] of the American League for the last two years, but it isn't so much that they were beaten both of those years, but that they failed to win [illegible] on either occasion.

Of [illegible] we are batting directly for the big end of the purse. There is no [illegible] that we are professional ballplayers [illegible] that we are paid for a living and trying to get as much out of baseball as we can.

[illegible] nothing unusual [illegible] Any man in any other profession or business tries to get all the money out of his work that he can

BECAUSE baseball is a sport, some people think we are playing it just for fun. It wouldn't get very far if that was all the players could get out of it But, also because it is a sport, there is a sentiment to it that a lawyer wouldn't get out of his profession or that a salesman wouldn't get out of his business

There is a pride in the game and that's why every one on the Cubs team being National League player, desire to get that world's championship flag back to wave from a National League pennant [illegible]

The money is a lot true enough I suspect the players on the winning team this year will get something more than $5000 apiece while those on the losing club will get about $3600

The difference there is worth battling for

BUT getting back to the sentiment of the game, we players of the National League feel that we must battle to get back on even terms with our rivals of the American League.

I like to study old records, and recently went over all the world series since 1905, which I recall was the first year the annual fall classic was conducted under present methods.

There have been twenty-four world series played during all those years, and I found that the American League contender had been victor fourteen times while the National Leaguers had won only ten times That means we have to win four times to catch up to them

SEEING that both the major leagues have an equal chance to develop teams on [illegible] [illegible] that [illegible] the annual fall contests [illegible] about even [illegible] apparently something happened to give the American League an advantage over us in the 24 years so it must be about time for the tables to be turned

Dividing those 24 years into three periods of eight each, I discovered that the National League held their rivals even in the first period, each winning four

Frank Chance's Cubs of 1907 and 1908 won two of the four, too. I [illegible] discovered [illegible] the last [illegible] years, the National League has held its rival even, winning four times and losing four times and this in spite of that strong Yankee team of that period

BUT during the middle period from 1913 to 1920 I found the National [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] Cincinnati beat the White Sox in that 1919 series which afterwards was shown to be wrong

Now we are opening a new eight year period and I'm hoping it will be a victory for the National League

Cuyler Rates High As Outfielder

By JOE CASHMAN

HAZEN "KIKI" CUYLER.

That's the young man to keep your optics focused on during the World Series next week, the week after, and, maybe, several weeks after that, if the weather man is in his usual form

The least discussed and most underrated of all the fly-chasers who will play in the classic, this well set up, black-haired, dark-visaged Cub right fielder is the best of the whole lot of them and the most likely to star, being one of those rare mortals who rise to greatest heights in emergencies.

Joe Cashman

Columns are written daily about the great Mackian trio, Simmons, Haas and Miller. More columns are turned out about the stellar Cubs pair, Wilson and Stephenson.

All fine players, these And worthy of the praise being bestowed upon them.

Not one of them, though, deserves to be mentioned in the same breath with Cuyler of whom little is being written and less said, when talking about great outfielders.

CUYLER rates as the best in the game today; one of the greatest of all times. Compared to him, the rest of the series gardeners are just ordinary ball players

Many fans will disagree with this on first thought, but shouldn't if they stop to consider what one must be to be termed an outstanding outfielder.

He must be a consistent 300 hitter. He must be fast and smart. He must be able to cover acres of territory, be a sure catch of fly balls and handle grounders like an infielder. He must possess a strong and accurate arm

Simmons, Wilson and Stephenson hit slightly better. There the comparison ends

None of them can field with Kiki None can throw with him None can run with him And he hits close to .350, which is a lot more than anybody can be expected to hit even though a few do better and leads both leagues in base stealing

He ranks with such immortal outfielders as Duffy McCarthy Clark, Speaker Cobb Hooper Roush, Lewis, Felsch Jackson Carey, Combs and Ruth

A GREAT "money" player, too, is this Cuyler. He proved it in the final game of the Pittsburgh-Washington series in 1925 when his great all around play turned the tide in the Bucs favor

He was under a cloud of suspension when the Pirates faced the Yanks in 1927 and was forced to sit on the bench and watch his mates lose four games in a row while the crowd yelled continually but in vain for Donie Bush to allow him to play

He has never forgotten the way his friends stood by him in that trouble, and ever since has been determined to prove to them that they were right when they said he ought to be in there and that if he was, the series would have been much closer

Dan Cupid Tackles Furman Grid Stars

Meanwhile the engagement of "Bush" Bull has been announced and there are rumors that Fred Noe and Mike Brown have looked upon Cupid with favor.

Brookline Eleven in Clash With English High Today

MEMORIAL-E. B. CONTEST POSTPONED

School Games Today

South Boston vs. Dorchester at Billings Field
English at Brookline
Country Day at Belmont
Roxbury Latin at Thayer Academy.
Worcester Commerce vs. Worcester Trade at Worcester.
Milton at Brockton.
Weymouth at Revere.

BROOKLINE High School's husky grid warriors will tangle with the English High [illegible] [illegible] Field [illegible] has begun.

The game between Memorial and East Boston was postponed because of wet grounds. The contest will probably be played later in the season.

Milton plays Brockton as one of the features of the Brockton Fair; Country Day goes to Belmont High, Roxbury Latin is entertained at Thayer Academy; Weymouth invades Revere, and Worcester Commerce scraps with Worcester Trade at Worcester in some of the other attractive contests carded.

South Boston has a fighting team which expects to take Dorchester into camp. John Meaney, a lineman who has been converted into a back, has shown promise as a ball-carrier for Dorchester. Meaney is big and powerful and can crash the line with terrific force.

INTEREST IN ENGLISH GAME

Much interest has been aroused over the English-Brookline match. English has played one game, winning from Charlestown 7-0, while Brookline tasted its first conflict last Saturday in a scoreless tie with Lynn Classical. Brookline is big and fast and has fleet backs in Houston and Woodward. The [illegible] will probably outweigh the [illegible] the Blue and Blue by a considerable margin.

There is some question as to whether Kenney, English backfield ace, will be able to play today. If he is not in the lineup much of his team's offensive power will be lost. [illegible] is expected to attend the contest since it is the first of three games in which [illegible] figure. Henigan Is Beaten at Brockton Fair for First Time

Jimmie Henigan, veteran 10-miler, lost his first Brockton Fair marathon since it became a scratch event, six years ago, to John Holmy of the B. A. A. before a crowd of 25,000.

The pair staged a remarkable race, being less than three feet apart during the entire 10 miles until the home stretch, when Holmy sprinted and crossed the finish line 30 yards ahead of smiling Jimmy. The winner's time was 56 minutes, 13 seconds.

INDRISANO IS CHOICE TO WIN

The bout will give a very good line on just where Mello, New England's welter and middleweight champion is likely to [illegible] comes out of his [illegible] latter part of this month. [illegible] it is likely that Al will not take on a tough customer for [illegible] the victor in Monday night's [illegible] will be right there waiting [illegible]

Because of his greater experience Indrisano will be favored to win on Monday night [illegible] expectation of [illegible] Shimeo's 24 successive wins [illegible] be turned "pro" [illegible] something and have [illegible] wonderful confidence [illegible] may bust up Indrisano's [illegible] campaign, even though [illegible] has not lost a [illegible] started [illegible]

A's Have Strategical Edge in Series; Cubs May Not Mind

New York, Oct. 4 (AP)—If the tactics of a baseball sage and master craftsman, guiding the play of his youthful talent by the wig-wags of a score card; if strategy, in other words, develops as a vital factor in the forthcoming World Series, the Athletics seem likely to have the advantage of the Cubs.

It may contribute nothing to the advancement of science for brute force to triumph, yet it is a well-known baseball fact that a few solid base hits can overthrow the most cunning strategy. For that reason, the clouting Cub circus probably is not worried by the threat of being outsmarted by Connie Mack and a strategic board of sages that numbers Kid Gleason, Eddie Collins and Ira Thomas.

The Yankees have given ample proof that the home run represents one of the cleverest methods of offsetting enemy maneuvers.

Nevertheless, the A's start with the benefit of Mack's long experience, his skillful player manipulation, in a short series where every move counts, where the slightest tactical mistake may mean the difference between the winner's and loser's end of the pot.

'RED' CAGLE SET FOR BIG YEAR

West Point, N. Y. (AP)—The [illegible] responsibility of acting as [illegible] of the Army football team [illegible] seem to weigh so heavily on the broad shoulders of Christian Keener Cagle.

The All-American halfback of the Cadets brought the crowd up standing the first time he had a chance and again the second. In Army's opening game with Boston [illegible]

Cagle was not downed until he had covered 40 yards. Herb Gibner, the Army quarterback, decided that since Cagle had done so well on his first chance he should have another opportunity. GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

[illegible] know exactly what happens to your grip [illegible] toward the finish of your forward swing. [illegible] your fingers at the finish. All wrong. That grip must be closed at the finish of your swing. The fact that it is open and loose at your finish indicates that you began to open and loosen it at about the instant your clubhead meets the ball. That will promote loose and ineffective connection with the ball. Also when your grip opens that way, as you go through, it gives your shoulders and upper body opportunity to quit on the swing and therefore your weight does not go solidly through. To grasp the difference here, make a few practice swings with the grip closed clear to the end and observe how different your body action is. Surprising!

"H" YEARLINGS LOSE STAR

Coach Art French will lead 45 members of the Harvard freshman football team to Andover tomorrow where the Crimson yearlings will open the 1929 season with Phillips Andover Academy.

Up till today, French considered prospects fair for a Harvard victory, but the loss of Don Finlayson, at left tackle, will make things considerable tougher for the Cambridge yearlings.

Finlayson broke his ankle in the final scrimmage practice yesterday, and as the break is a bad one, he is expected to be out of football for the rest of the season. He was a left tackle at Exeter last year, and was looking forward to another crack at the Andover line.

Probably every member of the Harvard yearling squad will be given a chance to show Coach French what he has learned in the way of gridiron strategy.

The Crimson lineup will have George Barton, former St. Mark's wingman at left end. Fransisco will start at left tackle in place of Finlayson. Left guard will be Harter, while Dick Almy, 200 pound pivot from Middlesex will be over the ball.

Full Shares for 26 Cubs

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 4—Twenty-six members of the Cub team, including Manager McCarthy and Coaches Burke and Land, will receive equal shares of the World Series money. A 27th share will be split by the club secretary and the trainer.

Eddie Froelich, the clubhouse boy, will be given $1000, and Langtry, bat boy, $300.

Pitcher Berlyn Horne, who was sent to Los Angeles in August when Charlie Gramm broke an arm and a quick trade was arranged for First Baseman Charlie Tolson loses most.

Instead of an estimated $6000 for a full share he would have received he was awarded only $2000. Tolson was given $1000.

GREEN DRILL ON MUDDY FIELD

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 4—Dartmouth's grid squad with its ardor considerably dampened by a driving rain that has fallen in Hanover for the last two days, scrimmaged on a mud covered field.

The afternoon started off with a long passing drill with emphasis being put on the timing of the passes. No longer will the aerial game be put into action without any consideration for the line play, as was the case during the Hawley regime.

A punting drill was next on the program in which several men made good showings, among them Al Marsters of Arlington, Mass., and Shep Wolff of Brooklyn. Then Cannell called for scrimmage formation, leaving out Clark, Marsters, Longbecker, Sutton, Andres and Morton, all first string men.

The purpose of this was to give the men on the other squads a chance at the new plays Cannell will put into action against Columbia on the 19th.

Other than this, the Dartmouth squad is remarkably free from injuries at the present time. Ed O'Connor of Malden is back and Cannell stated he will be able to play at his old right end berth in Saturday's game against Hobart. A light signal drill and passing drill is in order for today.

KOZLOWSKI PLAYS FOR BULLDOGS

JOE KOSLOWSKY, who played fine football for Boston College a few years ago, is expected to star at tackle for the Boston Bulldogs when they play the Orange, N. J., pro eleven at Orange on Sunday.

The former Eagle captain played for one year after college with the Providence Steamrollers and then assisted Frank Cavanaugh in the coaching of Fordham's gridsters.

Joe weighed about 210 pounds when he started practice with the pro squad this year, but has worked as hard as a young college sophomore, and is in almost perfect condition now.

All of the candidates for the Boston pro team have taken practice seriously, something that is not always true of the money chasers. The pro game makes such demands on a player's physique, however, that he must be hard as nails in order to give a good account of himself in any game.

As each member of the Hub squad is anxious to show well, that the team may make money later on in Boston, there is no loafing among the men.

They are going to be able to play fast and hard football from the opening game right through the season. And that should be enough to attract plenty of customers to their games.

A Pottsville veteran guard, Frank Racis, rated by many competent grid critics as the best pro guard in the country, is another great lineman who will do a lot for the Hub gang. He weighs 200 pounds and is about six feet tall.

Tremendously powerful, Racis hopes to make this his best season in the pro ranks. He takes over the job of chief of police at Shenandoah, Pa., when the schedule has been played through.

The remainder of the Boston team is all set for the opening whistle. The proper spirit and material is there. The plays are running smoothly now. So it's a cinch that Boston will have a pro eleven this year that will give the fans a run for their money.

Sophie Tucker Proves Herself Queen of "Red Hot Mammas" in "Honky Tonk" on Met Screen

APPEARS ON STAGE IN PERSON

The Cast

Sophie Leonard	Sophie Tucker
[illegible]	Lila Lee
Jean Gilmore	Audrey Ferris
Freddie Gilmore	George Duryea
Jim	Mahlon Hamilton
Cafe Manager	John T. Murray

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

WHEN all is said and done, "Honky Tonk" is Sophie Tucker, mostly! It's a "star talkie" with a vengeance. It is about all star. Paul Poiret couldn't have done a neater job of fitting the latest in wear to her body than have the film folk in tailoring a new dress out of an old theme for her peppy personality. She is a perfect Niagara of song on stage; and in this picture, now being screened at the Metropolitan, she gushes forth melody after melody, in the inimitable Tucker fashion. It will never be written that Miss Tucker has added anything dramatic to the movies, or that "Honky Tonk" put any of the other big Warner productions in the shade. But it can be written that this picture will bring in the coin just because Sophie Tucker is—well, Sophie Tucker.

Sophie Tucker

* * *

MISS TUCKER is in a class by herself with that last of the "Red Hot Mamma" stuff. Success, then, is the next station ahead. But add to that fact the further truth that today the glorious Sophie is here herself—yes, in person—to do the "ballyhoo" for the picture, and the show looks like a day-and-night sell-out. We see her on the screen, and then here she is, coming frequently out on the stage, and actually presiding as master of ceremonies. She talks, and she sings; and it is so highly entertaining that we are inclined to pun with the statement that the Met has put on its best bib-and-Tucker for the week. For Sophie is to remain in person at the theater through the last showing of "Honky Tonk" next Wednesday night.

* * *

THE story? Who cares? Or, what does it matter? It is much like a number of other film plots of the night club variety. Two or three weeks ago we saw Dolores Costello in "Madonna of Avenue A"; therein the club hostess has a daughter whom she has kept in ignorance of her status. Now we have Sophie Tucker similarly placed; she, too, has kept her child afar from the jazzy life. There is the usual facing of the music, the usual flight of the daughter after she learns the awful, awful truth, the usual reconciliation. But at the finish we have something new. Will you believe it—the "red hot mamma" as a grannie, in a close-up, with happy daughter, and her hubby, and the baby!

* * *

SO THE tale is no world-beater; there isn't much action save by Miss Tucker, who is a bundle of energy, anyway. She is snap from the word go. Probably she got a good laugh all by herself at the story they have wrapped around her personality and ability. She is an earful as well as an eyeful, to the worry about serious things?

* * *

THE press agent spoke truthfully when he forecast that Miss Sophie sings a full measure of breezy tunes. She does. Of course, "I'm the last of the Red Hot Mammas" is in her repertory; so are "I Don't Want To Get Thin," "I'm Feathering a Nest for a Little Blue Bird," and a good many others. They are all Tuckerishly put over, which means it means, splendidly.

* * *

MISS Tucker has the advantage of the direction of the good Lloyd Bacon. He did as well as anyone could with the material in hand; and naturally plays up the star to beat the band. She is "shot" from about every conceivable angle. Mr. Bason also jubilates in the power of his "mike" to record about every sound in nature and jazz life.

* * *

LEBANON HOFFA

This little girl deserves a big hand—and gets it, in the Marx brothers' show, "Animal Crackers," at the Shubert. She's one of the stars supporting cast.

BILLS FAVOR UNIT ACTS

By LEIGH HARBRIDGE

MUSIC, color and comedy are the keynotes of the stage bill at the motion picture houses for the new week. Excellent acts in general are on the program. To the Scollay will come tomorrow "Sally, Irene and Mary"; Harriet Nawrot & Co., roller skaters; Ted and Al Waldman, blackface funsters; Hibbard and Hartman, "Before and After"; Campus Col row a tabloid musical comedy, legians, acrobats, musicians and dancers.

* * *

THE Ken Whitmore and Joe Herbert Revue is announced as the stage attraction at Loew's State for the coming week. This unit is a sparkling musical extravaganza, with a cast of youthful singing and dancing phenoms, including Edith Murray, Bettye and Vaughan, LaSalice Bros., Marie and Antoinette, Freddy Byron and Jimmy Alden's Band.

* * *

HEADLINING the impressive list of big time vaudeville acts at Loew's Orpheum for the coming week is the famous musical impressario, Harry Girard and 13 girls featuring a Boston favorite, Anita Murphy. Others on the bill are the international dance comedian, Billy Farrell, in "Back Home"; Billy Hallen, the broadcasting comedian; Murray & Irwin, in "The Two Amusement Guides," and Ora, the bar gymnast.

* * *

AT the Metropolitan is the Publix Revue, a new one, "The Song Shop." At the Keith-Albee will be another high-class revue, "Odds and Ends," with a cast of 24.

Stage Who's Who

GERALD ROGERS, popular member of the E. E. Olive players at the Copley, where the mystery thriller, "The Crooked Billet" is the current offering, has a distinguished stage lineage. His father is Charles Rogers, famous playwright, actor and producer, or generations previously there was always some Rogers on the stage. So it was natural that Gerald should take easily to the theatre. During his career he has played opposite Otis Skinner and George Arlis. When Gerald was a mere youngster, backstage seemed more like home than any other place, and it was at the age of seven that he made his first public appearance.

GOLD DIGGING NO CINCH

By WINNIE LIGHTNER

Star of "The Gold Diggers of Broadway," now at Uptown and Washington St. Olympia.

GOLD Digging! The easiest thing in the world—to talk about, that is; but if I can trust the confidences of several hundred chorus girls during the past few years, the hardest thing in the world to practice.

People not in the theatrical profession have a mistaken idea of what happens back-stage and at the stage entrances. They've been spoiled by reading too much fiction of Johnnies willing to spend every cent of their dad's money on some fast-stepping chorine, and show gals ruining reputations and pocket books. These things happen on and off, but if you ask me, it's my candid opinion, based on no little observation, that they're the exception.

Why, most of the show girls I have known have been putting up a pretty stiff fight, and a stiff upper lip, making things go. Part of the year they've got a job, and the other half they're "at liberty," as we put it—at liberty to make up excuses to your landlady for not having the rent money handy.

If there are any girls hypnotic enough to have men transfer to them imported cars, jewelry, clothes and certified checks, why then all I can say, is more power to them. They deserve all they make, gold digging being what it is, the hardest work in the world. It must be like fishing. First you've got to get the fish on your hook, and second and more important, is getting it to stay there.

Title Chosen

"Devil May Care" has been selected as the final title of Ramon Novarro's initial talking vehicle, which is being directed by Sidney Franklin. The cast includes Dorothy Jordan, John Miljan, Helene Millard and Marion Harris.

SILENT FILMS SHOW OFF CHAPLIN

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

(Copyright, 1929, Universal Service, Inc.)

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 4—I don't know that I blame Charlie Chaplin for sticking to pantomime. I watched him rehearse a cafe scene in which he was all dressed up in a frock coat three times too big for him, and a new pair of shoes that would have fitted the giant in Barnum's circus. Charlie plays the scene with Harry Meyers, and the two of them are so funny that words would probably be just superfluous.

Louella Parsons

There is a strong rumor that Georgia Hale, who was Charlie's leading lady in "The Gold Rush," will play a part in "City Life." I hear from someone on the inside that she has been made an offer and, although Charlie was noncommittal, it wouldn't surprise me if he had two leading ladies, Virginia Cherrill and Miss Hale.

One of Hollywood's favorite rumors for the last six months has been the report that Charlie would one day marry Miss Hale. It has been denied time and time again, yet they are very good friends. Miss Cherrill was wearing a new diamond engagement ring put there by Buster West and she was receiving congratulations from Charlie and Henry, who is always Chaplin's shadow. I mean Henry whose delicatessen restaurant on Hollywood Boulevard is the rendezvous for so many people who go in search of a midnight snack.

* * *

ALL the little Cinderellas in Ireland are reciting the story of Maureen O'Sullivan with wide-eyed interest. Maureen is a colleen of 18, bobbed haired brunette and needless to say, typically Irish. Frank Borzage saw her in a Dublin restaurant and was so impressed with her personality and her good looks that he made some tests of her. They were satisfactory and in a remarkably short time Maureen was put under a six months' contract with an option of five years and signed for one of the leading parts in John McCormick's picture.

She arrives with the McCormick company in New York next week. Thomas Clifford, aged eleven, will also accompany the McCormick company to this country.

* * *

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Helen Hayes, Florence Eldridge and other stage folk at John Cromwell's buffet supper. Sally Eilers dressed in black, escorted by Edward Sutherland. Johnny Mack Brown attending the opening of the opera. Joan Bennett and Ivan Lebedeff and other film folk who listened to "Aida." Al Kaufmann entertaining a small dinner party before the opening of "The Dance of Life." Marion Spitzer telling friends that she has already started work on another book. Elsie Janis all in pink, accompanied by her mother, Larry Kent, Jack King and others at the opening of "The Dance of Life." Jose Bohr and Francisco Maran, one an Argentinian and one an Italian, both here with the "Blaze O' Glory" company, lunching at the Roosevelt. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Fox Casts 3 More

Fox Films has made several assignments to "The Lone Star Ranger," which is now in rehearsal. They are Delma Walson, Caroline Rankin and Bob Fleming. The picture features George O'Brien and Sue Carol and will be directed by A. F. Erickson.

GOSSIP ALONG NEW YORK'S RIALTO

EVERY time this corner looks the other way a new play runs out from under the table and goes into rehearsal. "The Booster" did it, and on the evening of October 21 the glad citizenry of New Rochelle will have a chance to turn sure-enough first-nighters.

"The Booster" is a comedy from the Viennese, as the vogue now is, and was adapted to American exigencies by Nathaniel E. Reid. Victor Morley is directing rehearsals and the cast is headed by Lester Bernard and Jean Newcombe.

* * *

Somehow or other, the impression has got about that we haven't done right by "Broken Dishes," Martin Flavin's new piece, in that it has not yet been set forth here, the author concocted it especially for Donald Meek. Well, that's easily corrected. It was so written and anybody who thinks it was done for Ethel Barrymore or even Nat Dorfman is all wrong.

What would a musical show be without a chorus asks Arthur Kober. And in the same breath he confidently supplies the answer "Nothing—absolutely nothing." And now that that's settled Arthur goes on to explain that the first call for chorus candidates for "Summer Time" is returnable on the stage of the Knickerbocker Theater.

Composers' Sis

FRANCES GERSHWIN

Frances is a sister of the famous composer, George Gershwin, and is featured in George Choos' "Odds and Ends" revue at the Keith-Albee.

NOVEL REVUE AT ALBEE THEATER

ONE of the most fascinating fantasies of color and gorgeous effect brought to the vaudeville stage in a long time is being offered to the patrons of the Keith-Albee tomorrow, where George Choos' musical revue, "Odds and Ends" is being headlined. Radiana, the luminous paint which was discovered by Choos and which was first introduced it to the vaudeville stage a few years ago in his "Land of Fantasie," is used with striking effect in "Odds and Ends." Costumes and scenery treated with this phosphorus substance glow in the darkness of the stage.

"Odds and Ends" introduces Miss Frances Gershwin, sister of the famous composer, George Gershwin, who has contributed to the musical score. Miss Gershwin offers songs and tap dances.

Featured in the cast are Frank Hurst and Eddie Vogt, comedians well known to vaudeville patrons; Chic Kennedy, comedienne; Kathryn Irwin, prima donna of exceptional ability; and the Harmony Trio.

RADIO NOTES -:- TONIGHT'S PROGRAMS -:- PERSONALITIES ON THE AIR

AT THE DIAL

By THE RADIO EDITOR

NOVEL broadcasting procedure will be employed when the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Leopold Stokowski, plays during the Philco hour Sunday on the stage of the Academy of Music in the Quaker City. A single condenser microphone will receive the symphonic sound waves which will go out to a listening nation. The microphone will be "focused" in the same manner as a camera which photographs a large group in the proper perspective. Another microphone will be placed behind the conductor for his announcements. An engineer seated at a portable control panel will regulate the volume of sound from the instruments.

Stokowski will perform the triple role of conductor, announcer and continuity writer. William S. Lynch, NBC announcer and production director, will introduce Henry M. Neely, the "Old Stager" and regular master of ceremonies for Philco Theater Memories. Stokowski will deliver a short preliminary talk and give a description of each selection before it is played. As this is the first radio performance of the famous musical organization it is of exceptional interest to the nation's music-loving population.

WHEN Amos 'n' Andy first ventured out on the radio highway in their fresh air taxicab two years ago, they hardly expected to embark on an endurance performance. Now that they have become entitled to "transplant" their business enterprise to metropolitan Harlem, they have only just "begun their joyride," as a critic recently expressed it. Charles J. Correll, the bullying Andy, and Freeman F. Gosden, the simple and trusting Amos, have become the highest priced radio artists in their particular line. The new environment in which they are placed offers a rare opportunity for their talent. It is estimated that more than [illegible]000,000 radio fans tune in the feature each night of the week, except Tuesday.

The "Evening in Paris" entertainment makes an effort in tonight's program from WEEI to even things up between those who have toured Paris and those who have not, for it presents a radio picture of a little restaurant high up under the Sacre Coeur in Montmartre, called La Savoyarde, that seldom sees an American face. One side of the restaurant, facing towards Paris, is all windows. A luminous panorama of Paris is framed by these windows. Here in this spot, Carpentier secured the inspiration for part of his opera "Louise." In the musical part of the program will be heard one brand new French song, "Un Couvert Pour Deux," and one extremely old one called "Quand L'Amour Refleurit," by the old master of the French waltz, Cremieux.

THE Schradertown snarl takes a new twist this week. Gus is faced with arrest for collusion, conspiracy to defraud, liability, fire and theft if he doesn't pay Sheriff Jones that $220 for the diamond ring which graces the Widow Biddle's engagement finger. Louis has already endorsed the $1000 prize check that the garage partners won jointly in the antique automobile race at the County Fair. The stubborn Gus has up to now refused to sign. How he gets the check away from the Widow Biddle and what happens at the stroke of 10 will be revealed after the weekly concert of the Schradertown Band, directed by Arthur Pryor, through WEEI.

Radio Tubes Have Cat's "Nine Lives"

Radio tubes may be delicate in appearance, but in reality they are more difficult to "kill" than a cat with the proverbial nine lives. This was proven in a recent fire and explosion in a New Orleans home.

During the blaze, a terrific blast of ignited gas blew the family radio set through a room wall of brick and plaster, burying it in the debris. Two weeks later it was recovered from the ruins. When hooked up it continued to give unimpaired reception.

OPEN SATURDAY EVENINGS

'BATTER UP' TO RESOUND NEXT WEEK

Everything is ready for broadcasting the opening game of the World Series at Chicago next Tuesday. With the entire coast-to-coast facilities of both the NBC and Columbia systems being utilized, it promises to be the greatest sports broadcast in all history.

Graham McNamee

Graham McNamee will be at the microphone as usual for the NBC stations, while Ted Husing will function for the Columbia network. All the colorful details of the diamond classics will be described by these veteran announcers, assisted by radio experts and newspapermen as observers and relief announcers.

To give the radio audience the full color and at the same time to afford an immediate and uninterrupted account of the play, the Columbia system will use a glass enclosed booth with a separate microphone connected in the regular circuit, but placed just outside the booth. When the crowd noise remains at normal level, this microphone will be left open, but in the periods of intense excitement it will be closed to permit only the announcer's voice being heard.

Ted Husing

Other microphones placed at vantage points about the field will enable the listeners to hear brief talks by celebrities attending the series, the voices of umpires and coaches and other interesting features. Finds Death Auto Operated Illegally

Judge Robert V. Hill, in Salem court, declared in an inquest finding filed here that six-year-old Ella Williams of Danvers, who was struck and killed in that town September 18 by an automobile driven by Harvard K. Harding of Portland, Me., died "as the result of Harding's unlawful act and improper operation of the motor vehicle."

The judge found that Harding could have avoided striking the child if he had halted his automobile instead of trying to get by her as she crossed the street with some other children.

TO BROADCAST MACDONALD

Final arrangements for broadcasting the arrival today of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald in New York have been completed and a nation-wide radio audience is assured of hearing the official welcome to be extended to the distinguished visitor and his party.

The steamship Berengaria is due to arrive at quarantine early this morning, where the civic reception committee will meet him and escort him on the tug Macon to Pier A, where the radio description of his welcome will begin. His landing on American soil will be to the accompaniment of the din of river craft and the cheers of the assembled throng.

The reception at the pier will be at approximately 9:30 o'clock and the broadcast will come through Boston stations WBZ and WNAC. The trip from the pier to City Hall is expected to consume nearly an hour, during which time a musical program will be provided. Details of the confetti barrage from the Battery to City Hall will be announced and then will follow a description of the arrival there and the welcoming speech of Mayor Walker.

Hugh Walton and David Ross will tell the story for Columbia, and Edward Thorgersen, John S. Young and Alwyn Bach will officiate at the NBC microphones. Premier MacDonald's arrival in Washington is expected to be between the hours of four and five o'clock. Incidents of the welcome there will be broadcast by William Lynch and George Hicks over the NBC networks, the former from the Union Station and the latter the trip to the British embassy.

The address of Premier MacDonald before the council on foreign relations on the evening of October 11 in New York city will be broadcast over 71 stations associated with the National Broadcasting Co. This was announced today.

OFFERS COURSE IN RADIO WORK

Radio service men are offered a newly prepared course in the repair and maintenance of radio sets by University Extension, Massachusetts Department of Education. This course, now ready for distribution to those who wish to enroll, is presented after repeated requests. The demand for distribution originated with persons located in communities removed from class centers but has spread rapidly and now includes scores of out-of-state residents.

Interest displayed in the class courses, especially those given at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, has been tremendous. Owing to the flexibility of correspondence instruction, even greater interest is predicted for the home study series. The regular feature of all Massachusetts University Extension correspondence courses, that of personal attention by the instructor, also applies to this course. Every member is placed in the charge of an experienced instructor who, in addition to correcting the student's papers, acts as a guide and advisor in the personal problems of the student which relate to the subject matter.

A thorough working knowledge of the electrical principles underlying reception is given in this course which considers the following topics: Antenna and ground systems; instruments for testing and repairing; how to trace the wiring in impedance-couplet sets, resistance-coupled sets, universal four-tube sets, superheterodynes reflex sets, tuned radio-frequency sets; short-wave receivers; loudspeakers; eliminators and charges for A, B, and C batteries; testing and reparing battery radio sets, eliminators and other accessories.

FIRST STATION STILL IN DOUBT

Regardless of the fact that Amrad's pioneer station WGI is now off the air, controversy still exists as to whether this station or KDKA was the first to broadcast a regular program. Everyone in New England knows that WGI was the first reliable station in the days when crystal sets and "one-tubers" were in vogue.

In those hectic days back in 1921 artists were scarce and the studio personnel was recruited from musicians. With the formation of the Big Brother Club at WGI by Bob Emery the first regular broadcasting feature came into being.

Act on Fire Loss

Pointing out that 15,000 lives are lost each year, in addition to property damage of $70,000,000 caused by fire, the fight against preventable deaths and loss caused by fire has been adopted as a part of the work of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs.

NEW TESTS FOR FIRE CAPTAINS

Capts. George F. Seaver and Myron A. Brown, both of whom failed in the physical examination, asked the commission for another examination.

This, according to the information given out by the civil service board, makes the first listing incomplete, as the final ratings cannot be established until the new marks for the second physical examination are determined.

The two captains will be re-examined next week.

The story of Phil Klipp, chief wireless operator, S. S. Pres. Harding (1923)

"Remember the horrors of Russia back in '22? Well, the lives of 30,000 people depended on my Brandes head phones. At that time I was aboard the S. S. Bellingham, discharging relief cargoes of grain for the city of Theodosia on the Black Sea. Telephone wires — cable wires — the Bolsheviks had destroyed them all. Our only means of communication with the American Relief headquarters in Constantinople, 450 miles away, were my wireless and Brandes head phones. In 12 days, I sent 185,000 words. If my Brandes head phones had gone dead on me — for only a day — ! Well — now you know why anything that carries the name of Brandes stands aces high with me. That new set is a wonder — and such a low price!"

HAVERHILL FIRE INVESTIGATED; 3 INJURED

Haverhill, Oct. 4—Fire of mysterious origin today destroyed the Emily st. plant of the Bailly Wood Heel Co., doing damage of $20,000 and throwing 150 employes out of work.

Three firemen were injured. They are:

Lieut. Leonard Whalen of Central station.

Hoseman Earl Hardy of the Central station.

They were assisted from the burning building by other firemen and rushed to a hospital. Hardy and Biladeau had foot injuries. Lieut. Whalen's arm was lacerated.

Hot air explosions several times forced the fire fighters back. They were showered with embers and flying debris. Valuable machinery was damaged or destroyed.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. George Bailly, wife of one of the two owners, whose home is across the way from the factory. She was awakened by smoke pouring in the open window of her bedroom. She called her husband. He saw the flames and called the fire department.

State Fire Inspector Howard Whittemore, on request of Fire Chief William H. Hawkins, began an investigation as soon as the fire was extinguished. The boiler room of the plant, housed in a separate building, was untouched by the flames. How the fire started was unexplained.

B. U. Grads Named Laboratory Aides

Vera L. Wright of Brockton and Albert J. Plummer of Woburn have been appointed laboratory assistants for the year in the chemistry department at Boston University's college of liberal arts, Dr. Lyman C. Newell, head of the department, announced.

Both Miss Wright and Plummer graduated from B. U. last year with distinction for superior work in chemistry.

Saved by Pulmotor, Still Wants to Die

After police and firemen had worked over her with a pulmotor and the prone pressure method of resuscitation for more than an hour, Mrs. Bessie McLeod of Dow st., Everett, opened her eyes today and pleaded with her rescuers to allow her to die.

"Why do you fellows revive me? Why do you let me suffer some more? Why don't you let me die in peace?" the officers quoted Mrs. McLeod as saying.

Mrs. McLeod, the police say, had made careful preparations to end her life and would have been successful but for the quick thinking of Mrs. Emma Dale of 95 Morris st., Everett, who had gone to the McLeod home to pay a call.

Mrs. Dale found doors and windows locked and, detecting an odor of gas, rushed to a neighbor's home and called the police.

SEEKS GYPSY AND $2950

The object of his quest was Rosita, dark-eyed, dark-haired Romany folk, lately vanished from a makeshift bower on Pleasant st., Malden.

George scanned features closely. It wasn't romance George was yearning for, however. It was $2950 cash.

He intrusted it to her keeping, he told the clerk of court, only because she was instructing him in gypsy magic. Her last trick was a disappearing one.

Balmy Week-End Is Promised Boston

New England motorists can plan to spend the week-end cruising about the hills enjoying, without fear of rain, the beautiful golden, red and brown hues of the New England forests.

Weather bureau officials today promised that not until Monday, at least, would there be rain. Sunday will be partly cloudy, but enough sunshine and warm weather will prevail to make motoring a pleasure. Saturday will also be ideal.

Bail Defaulter Is Returned to Boston

Gardiner, Me., Oct. 4 (AP)—Frank Chisholm, alias Fred Stone of Boston, was arrested here today as a fugitive bail defaulter from the Massachusetts city.

Frank I. Cohan, a Boston detective, said Chisholm was arrested last year on a liquor charge and had jumped his $500 bond. Chisholm waived extradition and claims of false arrest and was taken to Boston by Cohen.

First Snow Falls in Northern Vermont

Montpelier, Vt., Oct. 4 (AP)—Snow fell in the northeastern portion of the State today, Hiram Davis, deputy commissioner of weights and measures reported when he arrived at his office.

He said the hills from Newport to Greensboro were covered with a blanket of snow which still was falling when he drove through the region.
